The Social Construction of Nature Klaus Eder, 1996 This is a unique and agenda setting interpretation of nature and ecology that will become the essential reference in any debate on environmental politics and sociology Environmental Sociology Ed 2 John Hannigan, 2006-04-18 This new edition of John Hannigan's well known and respected text has been thoroughly revised to reflect recent conceptual and empirical advances in environmental sociology and will prove to be a valuable student resource Nature: From nature to natures : contestation and reconstruction David Inglis, John Bone, Rhoda Wilkie, 2005 Many influential stances within the social sciences regard nature in one of two ways either as none of their concern which is with the social and cultural aspects of human existence or as wholly a social and cultural fabrication But there is also another strand of social scientific thinking that seeks to understand the interplay between social and cultural factors on one side and natural factors on the other These volumes contain the main contributions that have been made within each of these streams of thought The selections illustrate to the reader the complexity of the various positions within these streams and the strengths and limitations of each perspective A new introduction places these articles in their historical and intellectual context and the volumes are completed with an extensive index and chronological table of contents What is a Disaster? E.L. Quarantelli, 2005-06-27 Are conflict situations such as the ethnic clashes in Yugoslavia or Rwanda terrorist attacks and riots the same kind of social crises as those generated by natural and technological happenings such as earthquakes and chemical explosions In What is a Disaster social science disaster researchers from six different disciplines advance their views on what a disaster is Clashes in conceptions are highlighted through the book's unique juxtaposition of the authors separately advanced views A reaction paper to each set of views is presented by an experienced disaster researcher in turn the original authors provide a response to what has been said about their views What is a Disaster sets out the huge conceptual differences that exist concerning what a disaster is and presents important implications for both theory study and practice

Religion, Theology and the Human Sciences

Richard H. Roberts, 2002 Religion Theology and the Human Sciences explores the religious consequences of the so called end of history and triumph of capitalism as they have impinged upon key institutions of social reproduction in recent times The book explores the imposition of managerial modernity upon successive sectors of society and shows why many people today feel themselves to be oppressed by systems of management that seem to leave them no option but to conform Richard Roberts seeks to challenge and outflank such seamless oppressive modernity through reconfiguration of the religious and spiritual field

Parties, Governments and Elites Philipp Harfst, Ina Kubbe, Thomas Poguntke, 2017-04-26 Parties governments and elites are at the core of the study of democracy The traditional view is that parties as collective actors play a paramount role in the democratic process However this classical perspective has been challenged by political actors observers of modern democracy as well as political scientists Modern political parties assume different roles contemporary leaders can more heavily influence politics governments face new constraints and new collective bodies continue to form propose new ways of participation and policy making and attract citizens and activists In the light of these observations the comparative study of democracy faces a number of important and still largely unsolved questions that the present volume will address

Nature and Social Theory Adrian Franklin, 2002 This book asks the questions can Man be separated from Nature Is it valid to seek to control Nature It argues that the firm modern boundaries between nature and culture have been breached and pulls together new strands of thinking about nature which suggest that humanity and nature have never been separate The argument is developed through a critical discussion of the Romantic ideal of pure nature unsullied by humanity and largely confined to fragile margins in need of protection and more recent discourses which identify nature with environment and cast man in the role of a polluter and destroyer

Oil and National Identity in the Kurdistan Region of Iraq Alessandro Tinti, 2021-11-29 Examining the interplay between the oil economy and identity politics using the Kurdistan Region of Iraq as a case study this book tells the untold story of how extractivism in the Kurdish autonomous region is interwoven in a mosaic of territorial disputes simmering ethnic tensions dynastic rule party allegiances crony patronage and divergent visions about nature Since the ousting of Saddam Hussein the de facto borders of the Kurdistan Region of Iraq have repeatedly changed with energy interests playing a major role in such processes of territorialisation. However, relatively little research exists on the topic. This book provides a timely empirical analysis of the intersections between extractive industries, oil imaginaries and identity formation in one of the most coveted energy frontiers worldwide. It shines a light on relations between the global production networks of petro-capitalism and extractive localities. Besides the strained federal relationship with the Iraqi central government, the transformative effects the petroleum industry has had on Kurdish society are also explored in depth. Moreover, the book fills a gap in the literature on Kurdish Studies, which has devoted scant attention to energy-related issues in the re-imagining of Kurdish self-determination. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of the extractive industries, energy studies, conflict studies, Middle Eastern politics and political ecology.

A Future for Regional Australia I. W. Gray, Geoffrey Lawrence, 2001-07-31 This book interprets the predicament faced by Australia's regional people from their own perspective and proposes a means by which they can act together to find a secure future under globalisation. It argues that neoliberalism in combination with its real-world effects in economic policy are driving regional Australia further into social, environmental and economic decay. The book will be of great interest to all concerned about the future of regional Australia and will make a lively and relevant text for students studying the social sciences in the countryside or in the major cities.

Anti-GenetiX Derrick A. Purdue, 2017-11-01 This title was first published in 2000. The development of genetically modified foods has given rise to much widespread and heated debate on the possible consequences, both positive and negative, of this new technology. This book not only addresses the broad issues involved, outlining the connections between gene patenting and biotechnology and their impact on international relations, but also for the first time examines the social movement emerging against GM food. Anti-GenetiX traces this movement from its emergence and shows how and why it expanded from a small expert concern to the current huge political uproar. It explores the contribution this movement makes to shaping global civil society and argues that such global social movements will become increasingly common in the global age.

50 Years of Community Development Vol II Norman Walzer, Rhonda Phillips, Robert Blair, 2021-05-13 This 50th anniversary publication provides a comprehensive history of community development. Beginning in 1970 with the advent of the Community Development Society and its journal, shortly thereafter Community Development, the editors have placed the chapters in major themed areas or issues pertinent to both research and practice of community development. The evolution of community development as an area of scholarship and application and the subsequent founding of the discipline is vital to capture. At the 50-year mark, it is particularly relevant to revisit issues that reoccur throughout the last five decades and look at approaches to addressing them. These include issues and themes around equity and inclusion, collective impact, leadership and policy development, as well as resilience and sustainability. Community change over time has much to teach us, and this set will provide a foundation for fostering understanding of the history of community development and its focus on community change. The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal Community Development Cultural Politics and the Transatlantic Divide over GMOs H. Environmental Politics Animals in the Sociologies of Westermarck and Durkheim Salla Tuomivaara, 2019-09-04 This book explores why animals at some point disappeared from the realm and scope of sociology. The role of sociology in the construction of a science of the human has been substantial, building representations of the human sphere of life as unique. Within the sociological tradition, however, animals have often been invisible, even non-existent. Through in-depth comparisons of the texts of prominent early sociologists Emile Durkheim and Edward Westermarck, Tuomivaara shows that despite this exclusion, representations of animals and human-animal relations were far more varied in early works than in the later sociological canon. Addressing a significant gap in the interdisciplinary field of animal studies, Tuomivaara presents a close reading of the historical treatment of animals in the works of Durkheim and Westermarck to determine how the human-animal boundary was established in sociological theory. The diverse forms in which animals and the animal appear in the works of early classical sociology are charted and explored alongside the sociological themes that bring animals into these texts. Situated in contemporary theory from critical animal studies to posthumanism, this important book lays the groundwork for a disciplinary shift away from this sharp human-animal dualism.
