Infection Prevention and Control Paul Elliott, Julie Storr, Annette Jeanes, 2017-12-04 This book presents a variety of perceptions of and perspectives on infection prevention and control. In doing this the chapters will reflect upon challenging and controversial new ways of looking at infection prevention and control aimed at generating both discussion and debate as well as practical solutions. With this in mind the book will aim not only to challenge the existing status quo but also push the frontiers of knowledge thinking and practice where infection prevention and control is concerned. This is vital when considered in the light of cross infection rates, the number of healthcare providers who are being identified by the Care Quality Commission as falling below acceptable standards of infection prevention and control and the almost compulsive persistent non-adherent behaviours of those involved in the provision of medicine, health, social care and other disciplines related to caring with regards to the undertaking of safe and appropriate standards of infection prevention and control. There is no doubt that this book will be challenging with regards to the readers' perceptions and perspectives of infection prevention and control. Where this topic is concerned however such a challenging approach is vital if the health safety and well-being of individuals is to be positively promoted among all those involved in the health and well-being of others

The Oxford Handbook of Management Theorists Morgen Witzel, Malcolm Warner, 2013-02-28 Concurrent with the increasing complexity of the field of management the need to re-examine the foundations from which its theories have advanced has become ever more important and useful. The Oxford Handbook of Management Theorists examines and evaluates the contributions that seminal figures past and present have made to the theory of management by providing in depth up to date and detailed scholarly analysis of their ideas and influence. Chapters by leading management and management history scholars explore the origins of each thinker or school of thought and their ideas and discuss the significance and influence in a broader framework. The Handbook contextualises each theorist and their theories analysing their actions, interactions and reactions to contemporary events and to each other. It is arranged in three parts: pioneers of management thinking from Frederick Taylor to Chester Barnard; post-war theorists such as the Tavistock Institute and Edith Penrose; and the later phase of Business School theorists including Alfred Chandler, Michael Porter and Ikujiro Nonaka. This book will be essential reading for anyone interested in how and why management ideas have emerged and the ways in which they are currently developing and will evolve in the future

African-Centred Management Education David N. Abdulai, 2016-04-01 In African Centred Management Education Professor Abdulai looks critically at the failings of management education in Africa and how that has impacted growth and development efforts especially at this critical stage in the continent's positive growth and development trajectory. He concludes that Africa's current positive economic growth cannot be sustained without a significant contribution from its human capital. He adds that the outstanding economic record of Asian economies in recent decades dramatically illustrates how important human capital is to growth. These countries, lacking natural resources and importing practically all their energy requirements, have grown rapidly by relying on a well-trained, educated, and conscientious workforce. Professor Abdulai believes that Africa too can sustain its current growth and development by effectively combining its abundant natural resources with its human capital to attain its economic development, but this will require an African cadre of well-trained managers at the helm of both private and public sector institutions. For this to become a reality, management education in Africa will have to play a significant role, but the author argues that it cannot be effective by continually mimicking the West in the programmes it delivers. It must come up with innovative and relevant pedagogy that will address the special challenges that the continent faces and deliver an African-centred management education. As well as pointing to the failures of management education in Africa, Abdulai offers suggestions as to how to make management education really contribute to the education of Africans in order to sustain current and future development.

The Power of Technology for Learning Noah P. Barsky, Mike Clements, Jakob Ravn, Kelly Smith, 2008-09-23 In today's dynamic global business environment where knowledge is a main asset and learning becomes the most important process, Business Education needs to employ the right practices to develop future leaders. Businesses require graduates that become true experts. But can business schools indeed create learning experiences that address the needs of the global marketplace? Can they teach students to build learning organizations? The articles in this volume detail successful approaches developed by business educators and researchers. The approaches have been implemented to solve real problems and to provide students with the ethical and analytical abilities they will need to both compete and contribute to the betterment of others. The thematic part of this volume focuses on the potential of interactive on-line activities to promote business and economics education. They demonstrate the benefits that learning technologies can bring and show how to overcome potential problem issues.

Critical Theory Ethics for Business and Public Administration David M. Boje, 2008-09-01 The purpose of this book is to develop those ethical traditions. For example, Horkheimer's books Eclipse of Reason and Critique of Instrumental Reason and his early and now classic essay Materialism and Morality ask for a reformation of Kantian ethics. The reform sought is that categorical imperative in an individualism capitalism serves to worsen the difference between business ethics and moral philosophy. That is, it is not enough to try to be good or ethical as individuals when it is the systemic processes that must be dealt with. Therefore, Horkheimer asks that the maxim that would be made universal be done at the level of people organizing with others to change the social system that is producing the unethical behaviors. The book is organized into several sections. The first section sets the stages beginning with a challenge to the field of social responsibility in business and public administration. Jones Tenbos Parker have a new book out that is
