Try to Remember Judith Freeland, 2005-11 Try to Remember is a six-year journey through the memories and musings of a man diagnosed with Alzheimer's. It opens with a moment of Greg's forgetfulness, an early symptom of the disease that would exile him to a nursing home for the rest of his life. Mostly, it is stories told to anyone who would listen of his boyhood in the early 20th century in a small village in Minnesota, spending summers from the age of ten with harvest crews throughout the grain belt states, his early adulthood during the Great Depression and the less trumpeted dust bowl years when jobs were scarce and ill-paid. He remembers his joys during courtship, marriage, and fatherhood, his triumphs as an entrepreneur involved on the fringes of Canadian politics, his love of horses. His mind returns again and again to summers at the family lake cottage: the night a bear raided the icebox, the day he feared a daughter had drowned, the night the Northern Lights spectacularly outshone Fourth of July fireworks. The memories are funny and sad, exciting and mundane, terrifying and comforting. As scattered as his memories is his fleeting awareness that his mind was failing him.

Toward a Common Hope Robert Allan Hill, 2018-11-21 Our churches and our country long for an expression of common hope. Over the last century venerable voices in affirmation of a common faith and a common ground have been lifted and heard in Boston such as those of John Dewey and Howard Thurman. The Dean of Marsh Chapel Robert Allan Hill has preached on themes related to a common hope since 2006. Hill has lifted the theology of hope of a common hope at the marrow of the gospel. We cherish our forebears who taught about a common faith and preached a common ground. In church and culture today in America it is the prospect of a lasting sturdy shared hope more purple than either blue or red for which we hunger. The sermons about a common hope collected here were preached at the Chautauqua Institution in August of 2017.

Who Said I Was Up For Adoption? Colin Chappell, 2016-05-06 Is there any expression of FRIENDSHIP as endearing as a dog voluntarily touching its nose to yours? When Colin Chappell contemplated the idea of adopting a dog he did so warily for he had seldom spent time with dogs and one of his primary canine experiences came when he was bitten by a German Shepherd at age fourteen. He certainly was unprepared for the complexities of caring for the seventy-five pounds of rescued furry attitude he encountered in Ray. But perhaps what he was even more unprepared for were the emotions he would feel once Ray invited him to be his friend. Who Said I Was Up For Adoption tells the evolving story of this adoption though it remains unclear just who did the adopting. Funny, heartwarming, and emotional. Colin and Ray's story is really two stories for part of learning to let an adopted dog into one's life is learning to see from a perspective other than your own. True to that knowledge, the book is narrated from parallel alternating viewpoints: Colin's and Ray's. All net profits from sales of Who Said I Was Up For Adoption will be donated to the Oakville and Milton Humane Society, a remarkable organization that rescues and rehabilitates dogs and many other creatures and matches them with suitable loving humans.

Pocius,2000 A Place to Belong is a profusely illustrated intimate contemporary portrait of Calvert a three hundred year old fishing village on Newfoundland s southern shore Often using its residents own words Gerald Pocius describes in detail the continual creative encounters between past and present between individual and community that make up daily life in Calvert By accepted standards of tradition Calvert s culture is declining Old structures are regularly torn down or renovated antique household items are replaced with modern conveniences Pocius argues however that the tangible expressions of a culture can be misleading Calvert s essence is not in the things owned and used by its residents but in the spaces in which those things abide and in the attitudes values and obligations that delineate the order of those spaces From woodlands water and fields to yards gardens and homes Calvert s physical and social structure is governed by shared concerns about the community's livelihood and welfare As a resident of Calvert puts it Where you're working in the same space with people you know it's just not practical to be falling out with everyone The sense of community that pervades Calvert is best exemplified by its annual draw for fishing berths Because productivity varies among offshore fishing grounds there is no private ownership of fishing rights Rather a lottery instituted in 1919 ensures each family the same chances for periodic access to the best fishing berths The draw continues until all the fishing berths are awarded but it is common for a family to opt out once they have drawn enough good berths There are also instances of the most successful fishing operations sharing their catches From his observations of Calvert's people at work and leisure Pocius provides evidence to confirm the viability and durability of their culture He reveals that standard assumptions about culture are inadequate particularly those based on the primacy of artefacts and on sharp dichotomies between tradition and modernity Calvert he shows belies our notion that declining cultural values and social segmentation are unavoidable side effects of modernisation and a rise in material well being A Place to Belong will promote a constructive scepticism about the ways we perceive and interpret cultures and most important will remind us of what it really means to belong to a place
