Sunbelt Snowbelt Urban Development And Regional Restructuring:

Sunbelt/snowbelt Larry Sawers, William K. Tabb, 1984 Sunbelt/snowbelt. urban development and regional restructuring conference, 1981, washington Larry Sawers, William K. Tabb, 1984 Snowbelt Cities Richard M. Bernard, 1990 A major contribution to the literature on changing US regionalism the volume is handsomely produced and thoroughly documented Choice useful and well researched American Politics Review This is an excellent book for use in the course on comparative urban development It is a book that should be read by any urbanist who believes that a historical orientation is the best prelude for understanding the future of urban development into the 21st century Urban Studies Specialists in urban history and urban affairs join forces to compare the recent political histories of twelve major northeastern and midwestern cities These excellent essays delineate intricate patterns of political competition among leaders of competing groups who generally agree on a pro business pro growth agenda as in the Sunbelt The relative power of nonbusiness groups however sets these northern cities apart from those of the Sunbelt and has formed the basis of the Snowbelt's postwar politics

Spatial Divisions of Labor Doreen Massey, 2024-11-01 Debate still rages over some of the questions Doreen Massey provoked in the classic first edition of Spatial Divisions of Labor such as the nature of theory the importance of contingency and uniqueness and the relationship of Marxism This second edition addresses these controversies and also reflects on other debates which have taken place over the last decade It contains a new first chapter and a lengthy additional concluding essay in which Massey takes up the issues of the book's relation to Marxism its position on explanation its argument about the conceptualization of social space and its relation to gender and feminism

Spatial Divisions of Labour Doreen Massey, 1995-06-28 The first edition of Spatial Divisions of Labour rapidly became a classic It had enormous influence on thinking about uneven development the nature of economic space and the conceptualisation of place arguing for an approach embedding all these issues in a notion of spatialised social relations This second edition includes a new first chapter and an extensive additional concluding essay addressing key issues in the debates and controversies which followed initial publication

Suburbia Donald N. Rothblatt, Daniel J. Garr, 2021-06-29 Originally published in 1986 and drawing on material from the USA The Netherlands and Israel this book addresses the question of whether suburban environments enhance the quality of life and which factors influence this quality It examines whether suburbs really provide improved housing and community services compared to the central city and whether they foster rewarding social patterns and psychological well being It also analyses precisely what characteristics suburban areas offer and how congruent these characteristics are with the preferences of suburban residents

New Models In Geography Richard Peet, Nigel Thrift, 2013-10-11 First published in 1989 It seems such a long time ago another age yet it is a mere twenty odd years since the original Models in Geography was published It is an even shorter time since the first tentative steps were taken towards an alternative formulation of what might constitute a geographical perspective within the social sciences What came to be called the political economy perspective has progressed with remarkable speed and energy to generate its own framework of conceptualization and analysis its own questions and debates The papers in these two volumes are witness to the richness and range of the work which has developed over this relatively short period within the political economy approach Moreover from being a debate within an institutionally defined discipline of geography to introducing into that discipline ideas and discussions from the wider fields of philosophy and social science and the humanities more generally it has now flowered into a consistent part of enquiries that span the entire realm of social studies

The Geography of Innovation M.P. Feldman, 2013-06-29 This book offers a geographic dimension to the study of innovation and product commercialization Building on the literature in economics and geography this book demonstrates that product innovation clusters spatially in regions which provide concentrations of the knowledge needed for the commercialization process The book develops a conceptual model which links the location of new product innovations to the sources of these knowledge inputs The geographic concentration of this knowledge forms a technological infrastructure which promotes information transfers and lowers the risks and the costs of engaging in innovative activity Empirical estimation confirms that the location of product innovation is related to the underlying technological infrastructure and that the location of the knowledge inputs are mutually reinforcing in defining a region's competitive advantage The book concludes by considering the policy implications of these findings for both private firms and state governments This work is intended for academics policy practitioners and students in the fields of innovation and technological change geography and regional science and economic development This work is part of a larger research effort to understand why the location of innovative activity varies spatially specifically the externalities and increasing returns which accrue to location xi

Acknowledgements This work has benefitted greatly from discussions with friends and colleagues I wish to specifically note the contribution of Mark Kamlet Wes Cohen Richard Florida Zoltan Acs and David Audretsch I would like to thank Gail Cohen Shaivitz for her dedication in editing the final manuscript

Separate Societies William Goldsmith, Edward Blakely, 2010-06-18 An examination of the presence and persistence of urban poverty and the dilemmas of local reform

Regions J. Nicholas Entrikin, 2017-05-15 This volume gathers a collection of the most seminal essays written by leading experts in the field which identify or signal many of the changing directions of regional research in geography during the past fifty years Various forms of new regionalism or new regional geography have emerged over the last several decades especially in political and economic geography but in general the region has been a concept in declining use Despite this the region has gained new currency in sub areas of political and economic geography and a so called new regionalism has emerged in studies of the changing nature of the nation state in a globalizing economy Taken together the essays in this volume provide the reader with a comprehensive overview of academic developments in this area of geographical research

Bird on Fire Andrew Ross, 2011-10-27 Phoenix Arizona is at once one of America's fastest growing cities and its least sustainable one A sprawling megalopolis of more than five million souls it is parched the result of minimal rainfall and scorching heat Yet historically its population has been hostile to both placing limits on growth and restricting property rights In Bird on Fire noted chronicler of contemporary social life Andrew Ross relies on Phoenix's to perform a paradoxical task explain how we can establish sustainable urban living in this most unsustainable of cities The vast majority of authors writing on sustainable cities focus on places like Portland New York and various west European cities that have excellent public transit systems and high density Ross does the opposite and contends that if we can't make fast growing cities like Phoenix sustainable then the whole movement is has a major problem In the course of tracing how it grew and explaining why it is so unsustainable he considers how it might become sustainable He contends that if Phoenix is to achieve this goal it will occur primarily through political and social change greater civic engagement democratic inclusion and socially just policies rather than through technological fixes Technological fixes are not unimportant but for them to work we first must rearrange our social and political arrangements In sum Bird on Fire provides a truly fascinating window into one of the pressing social issues of our time finding pathways to sustainability in an era of increasing energy consumption and sprawl

Strange Places Alexandra Kogl, 2008-01-01 Strange Places The Political Potentials and Perils of Everyday Spaces explores the ways in which places can support good politics in a global era Using concrete examples and cases this interdisciplinary work is accessible to a broad scholarly audience

Postmodern Geographies Edward W. Soja, 2024-12-10 Postmodern Geographies stands as the cardinal broadcast and defence of theory's spatial turn From the suppression of space in modern social science and the disciplinary aloofness of geography to the spatial returns of Foucault and Lefebvre and the construction of Marxist geographies alert to urbanization and global development renowned geographer Edward W Soja details the trajectory of this turn and lays out its key debates An expanded critique of historicism and a refined grasp of materialist dialectics bolster Soja

s attempt to introduce geography to postmodernity animating a series of engagements with Heidegger Giddens Castells and others Two exploratory essays on the postfordist landscapes of Los Angeles complete the book offering a glimpse of Soja s new geography carried into its highest register

The State and the City Ted Robert Gurr, Desmond King, 1987-08-27

Many of the oldest and largest Western cities today are undergoing massive economic decline The State and the City deals with a key issue in the political economy of cities the role of the state Ted Robert Gurr and Desmond S King argue that theoreticians from both the left and the right have underestimated the significance of state action for cities Grounding theory in empirical evidence they argue that policies of the local and national state have a major impact on urban well being Gurr and King s analysis assumes modern states have their own interests institutional momentum and the capacity to act with relative autonomy Their historically based analysis begins with an account of the evolution of the Western state s interest in the viability of cities since the industrial revolution Their argument extends to the local level examining the nature of the local state and its autonomy from national political and economic forces Using cross national evidence Gurr and King examine specific problems of urban policy in the United States and Britain In the United States for example they show how the dramatic increases in federal assistance to cities in the 1930s and the 1960s were made in response to urban crises which simultaneously threatened national interests and offered opportunities for federal expansion of power As a result national and local states now play significant material and regulatory roles that can have as much impact on cities as all private economic activities A comparative analysis of thirteen American cities reflects the range and impact of the state s activities at the urban level Boston they argue has become the archetypical postindustrial public city half of its population and personal income are directly dependent on government spending While Gurr and King are careful to delineate the limits to the extent and effectiveness of state intervention they conclude that these limits are much broader than formerly thought Ultimately their evidence suggests that the continued decline of most of the old industrial cities is the result of public decisions to allow their economic fate to be determined in the private sector

Research and Technological Innovation Alberto Quadrio Curzio, Marco Fortis, 2005-12-27 Contains some essays of two international conferences both organized by Fondazione Edison Districts pillars network facilities and New science new industry the challenges for new Europe

Defining the National Interest Peter Trubowitz, 1998-02-17 The United States has been marked by a highly politicized and divisive history of foreign policy making Why do the nation s leaders find it so difficult to define the national interest Peter Trubowitz offers a new and compelling conception of American foreign policy and the domestic geopolitical forces that shape and animate it Foreign policy conflict he argues is grounded in America s regional diversity The uneven nature of America s integration into the world economy has made regionalism a potent force shaping fights over the national interest As Trubowitz shows politicians from different parts of the country have consistently sought to equate their region s interests with that of the nation Domestic conflict over how to define the national interest is the result Challenging dominant accounts of American foreign policy making Defining the National Interest exemplifies how interdisciplinary scholarship can yield a deeper understanding of the connections between domestic and international change in an era of globalization

Ethnic Minorities and Industrial Change in Europe and North America Malcolm Cross, 1992-10-22 Following World War II racial and ethnic minorities formed a pool of low paid labour upon which the industrial city depended When industrial production shifted overseas the new local technological industries required fewer better skilled workers The consequence for those excluded was disastrous In this book leading authorities compare the situation of minorities in the post industrial cities of Europe and North America

The New Economic Role of American States R. Scott Fosler, 1991-02-28 The growth of service and high tech industries in recent years has dramatically altered the geographical distribution of businesses throughout America Some states have had to attract new businesses to replace declining smokestack industries while others have experienced the trauma of rapid economic growth This collection of case studies of California Massachusetts Michigan Tennessee Arizona Minnesota and Indiana analyzes strategies and problems of economic evolution and the role of state institutions in the context of regional national and world economic change
