The Cambridgeshire Landscape Cambridgeshire And The Southern Fens:

The Cambridgeshire Landscape: Cambridgeshire and the Southern Fens C. Taylor, 1973      A Landscape of Plenty: Excavations on a Roman Estate, Cambridgeshire Francis M. Morris, James E. R. Davey, 2025-08-21 Excavations near Milton Cambridgeshire revealed a late Roman agricultural complex with enclosures structures and a possible villa estate Active from the mid 3rd to 5th century AD the site suggests surplus grain production and cattle use The findings raise key questions about land use after Roman rule ended      Landscapes of Monastic Foundation Tim Pestell, 2004 Pre Conquest monastic foundations in the present day counties of Norfolk and Suffolk in their topographical social economic and political environment evolution of religious devotion in East Anglia since the 7th century Conversion the influence of the Anglo Saxon past on the post Conquest monastic landscape      Prehistoric Settlement Patterns Around the Southern North Sea , 1982

Marshland Communities and Cultural Landscapes Christopher Evans, Ian Hodder, 2006 Set in the context of Haddenham project s innovative landscape surveys this book covers four sites excavated at Haddenham providing insights into death and ritual in a changing prehistoric environment Moving on to later periods it reveals how Iron Age and Romano British communities adapted to the wetland environment      Rival Jerusalems K. D. M. Snell, Paul S. Ell, 2000-10-26 This pioneering book is based upon very extensive analysis of the famous 1851 Census of Religious Worship and earlier sources such as the 1676 Compton Census The authors stress contextual and regional understanding of religion Among the subjects covered for all of England and Wales are the geography of the Church of England Roman Catholicism the old and new dissenting denominations the spatial complementarity of denominations and their importance for political history A range of further questions are then analysed such as regional continuities in religion the growth of religious pluralism Sunday schools and child labour during industrialisation free and appropriated church sittings landownership and religion and urbanisation and regional secularisation This book s advanced methods and findings will have far reaching influence within the disciplines of history historical and cultural geography religious sociology and in the social science community general      Kingdom, Civitas, and County Stephen Rippon, 2018 This book explores the development of territorial identity in the late prehistoric Roman and early medieval periods Over the course of the Iron Age a series of marked regional variations in material culture and landscape character emerged across eastern England that reflect the development of discrete zones of social and economic interaction The boundaries between these zones appear to have run through sparsely settled areas of the landscape on high ground and corresponded to a series of kingdoms that emerged during the Late Iron Age In eastern England at least these pre Roman socio economic territories appear to have survived throughout the Roman period despite a trend towards cultural homogenization brought about by Romanization Although there is no direct evidence for the relationship between these socio economic zones and the Roman administrative territories known as civitates they probably corresponded very closely The fifth century saw some Anglo Saxon immigration but whereas in East Anglia these communities spread out across much of the landscape in the Northern Thames Basin they appear to have been restricted to certain coastal and estuarine districts The remaining areas continued to be occupied by a substantial native British population including much of the East Saxon kingdom very little of which appears to have been Saxon By the sixth century a series of regionally distinct identities that can be regarded as separate ethnic groups had developed which corresponded very closely to those that had emerged during the late prehistoric and Roman periods These ancient regional identities survived through to the Viking incursions whereafter they were swept away following the English re conquest and replaced with the counties with which we are familiar today

Coping with Crisis: The Resilience and Vulnerability of Pre-Industrial Settlements Daniel R. Curtis, 2016-05-13 Why in the pre industrial period were some settlements resilient and stable over the long term while other settlements were vulnerable to crisis Indeed what made certain human habitations more prone to decline or even total collapse than others All pre industrial societies had to face certain challenges exogenous environmental hazards such as earthquakes or plagues economic or political hazards from outside such as warfare or expropriation of property or hazards of their own making such as soil erosion or subsistence crises How then can we explain why some societies were able to overcome or negate these problems while other societies proved susceptible to failure as settlements contracted stagnated were abandoned or even disappeared entirely This book has been stimulated by the questions and hypotheses put forward by a recent disaster studies literature in particular by placing the intrinsic arrangement of societies at the forefront of the explanatory framework Essentially it is suggested that the resilience or vulnerability of habitation has less to do with exogenous crises themselves but on endogenous societal responses which dictate a the extent of destruction caused by crises and the capacity for society to protect itself and b the capacity to create a sufficient recovery By empirically testing the explanatory framework on a number of societies between the Middle Ages and the nineteenth century in England the Low Countries and Italy it is ultimately argued in this book that rather than the protective functions of the state or the market or the implementation of technological innovation or capital investment the most resilient human habitations in the pre industrial period were those that displayed an equitable distribution of property and a well balanced distribution of power between social interest groups Equitable distributions of power and property were the underlying conditions in pre industrial societies that all

Alluvial Archaeology in Europe Andrew J. Howard, M.G. Macklin, D.G. Passmore, 2003-01-01 This book documents and assesses over ten years of research in the field bringing together expertise and knowledge from the disciplines of archaeology and geomorphology and highlighting important recent advances discoveries and new directions Reflecting the wide scope of current research in this area the book contains over twenty papers focusing on various aspects of alluvial archaeology from the methodology of dating prospecting excavating etc to previously under analysed geographical areas such as intertidal wetlands

Bronze Age Landscapes Joanna Bruck, 2002-02-01 This volume is a collection of essays which exemplify the range and diversity of work currently being undertaken on the regional landscapes of the British Bronze Age and the progress which has been made in both theoretical and interpretive debate Together these papers reflect the vibrancy of current research and promote a closer marriage of landscape site and material culture studies

From Coast to Fen: Archaeology in a Dynamic Landscape Claire Christie, Joshua T. Hogue, 2025-07-18 Excavations across East Lincolnshire reveal prehistoric Iron Age Roman and post medieval settlements saltmaking and industrial activity shaped by changing landscapes The area between Anderby Creek and Bicker Fen Lincolnshire to the west of the Lincolnshire Wolds represents a dynamic landscape both in terms of its natural and human aspects This volume presents the results of an extensive programme of archaeological excavation undertaken by Headland Archaeology UK Ltd and Allen Archaeology Ltd from 2018 to 2019 where a total of 15 sites were excavated The excavations uncovered a panoply of remains spanning the prehistoric through to modern periods providing important insights into changing patterns of occupation and the way this diverse landscape was utilised As evidenced through the archaeological works the area saw limited activity during the early prehistoric period in part reflecting the prevailing environmental conditions in which most of the area was inundated Among the earliest recorded finds was an enigmatic middle Bronze Age timber structure as well as a copper alloy axe During the Roman period there is evidence for an expansion in activity across the Scheme with formerly inundated areas becoming accessible Activity within the northern half of the Scheme was focused upon salt production Two of these sites were dated to the late Roman period contrary to the prevailing notion that the salt industry in this region had declined by the mid 2nd century AD Within the southern half of the Scheme were several Roman farmsteads some featuring timber buildings Notable among these was an unusual post built moated structure From these sites a range of artefactual and environmental data was collected providing important insights into the nature of agricultural regimes Evidence of medieval and post medieval activity was also uncovered providing important insights into the development of rural settlement against a backdrop of landscape and environmental changes Evidence of late to post medieval clay extraction and brick manufacture was also identified

The Ruling Elite of Cambridgeshire, England, C. 1520-1603 Eugene J. Bourgeois, 2003 This study suggests that geography kinship and other communal connections were important factors for the formation of an active political elite often superseding religion and external or central intervention in significance Core groups of resident gentry within the broader elite dominated local office holding and more importantly active participation in shire government throughout the period examined The dual focus on the myriad connections that impacted the formation of the Cambridgeshire ruling elite together with the detailed analysis of local governmental activity represent two themes that are not widely published for Tudor counties The Cambridgeshire experience and developments in other countries are compared extensively while considering the wider national context that includes changes in central government the progress of the religious reformation efforts at governmental centralization and responses to foreign threats

The Soldier Experience in the Fourteenth Century Anne Curry, Andy King, David Simpkin, 2011 Essays throwing fresh light on what it was like to be a medieval soldier drawing on archival research The long fourteenth century saw England fighting wars on a number of diverse fronts not just abroad in the Hundred Years War but closer to home But while tactics battles and logistics have been frequently discussed the actual experience of being a soldier has been less often studied Via a careful re evaluation of original sources and the use of innovative methodological techniques such as statistical analysis and the use of relational databases the essays here bring new insights to bear on soldiers both as individuals and as groups Topics addressed include military service and the dynamics of recruitment the social composition of the armies the question of whether soldiers saw their role as a profession and the experience of prisoners of war Contributors Andrew Ayton David Simpkin Andrew Spencer David Bachrach Iain MacInnes Adam Chapman Michael Jones Guilhem Pepin Remy Ambuhl Adrian R Bell

Castles, Siegeworks and Settlements Duncan W. Wright, Oliver H. Creighton, 2016-11-30 This volume comprises thirteen reports detailing fieldwork undertaken by a research project which sought to assess the archaeological evidence of the period of conflict that took place in mid twelfth century England popularly known as the Anarchy

The Enclosure Maps of England and Wales 1595-1918 Roger J. P. Kain, John Chapman, Richard R. Oliver, 2004-07 This book offers the first comprehensive study of the enclosure mapping of England and Wales Enclosure maps are fundamental sources of evidence in many types of historical inquiries Although modern historians tend to view these large scale maps essentially as sources of data on past economies and societies this book argues that enclosure maps had a much more active role at the time they were compiled Seen from this perspective of their contemporary society enclosure maps are not simply antiquarian curiosities cultural artefacts or useful sources for historians but instruments of land reorganisation and control which both reflected and consolidated the power of those who commissioned them The book is accompanied by a fully searchable descriptive and analytical web catalogue of all parliamentary and non parliamentary enclosure maps extant in public archives and libraries and offers an essential research tool for economic social and local historians and for geographers lawyers and planners Middle Saxon' Settlement and Society: The Changing Rural Communities of Central and Eastern England Duncan Wright, 2015-05-31 This book explores the experiences of rural communities who lived between the seventh and ninth centuries in central and eastern England Combining archaeology with documentary place name and topographic evidences it provides unique insight into social economic and political conditions in Middle Saxon England Cambridge and Its Economic Region, 1450-1560 John S. Lee, 2005 Lee studies the population wealth trade and markets of Cambridge and its region and the changes that took place over a century of economic and social transition are detailed Fenland Survey David Hall, John Coles, 2014-02-15 Archaeological surveys of the Fenland of eastern England were initiated in the 1930s after it became clear that centuries of drainage and cultivation had seriously reduced the archaeological deposits These studies were among the first to take a multi disciplinary approach to archaeological work and continued with new work in the 1980s when intensive surveys were made of the wetlands of Cambridgeshire Lincolnshire Norfolk and Suffolk During the eight years of the Fenland Survey 1981 88 fieldworkers walked 250 000 hectares and initiated palaeoenvironmental investigations allied to a radiocarbon dating programme At the end of the survey in 1989 90 the survey results were evaluated and a programme of field investigations undertaken This volume is a synopsis of that work It provides an introduction to the traditional Fenland as perceived by both ancient and modern geographers explorers and historians and a summary of the complex environmental history of the region It is presented broadly according to the traditional archaeological periods Mesolithic to medieval but it also provides an overview of cultural continuity and of the response to changing conditions over 6000 years of history It concludes with some reflections on the present condition of the Fenland and the response of the archaeological community to the threats posed by recent agricultural and other practices The Story of the Fens Valerie Gerrard, 2003 Once known as the drowned lands the Fens have been transformed from a flooded area with only small islands habitable throughout the year into one of the most productive and fertile regions of the country Deeply attached to the Fens Valerie Gerrard weaves an intricate tapestry of the history and people of the area Geoarchaeology in Action Charles French, 2005-06-27 Geoarchaeology in Action provides much needed hands on methodologies to assist anyone conducting or studying geoarchaeological investigations on sites and in landscapes irrespective of date place and environment The book sets out the essential features of geoarchaeological practice and geomorphological processes and is deliberately aimed at the archaeologist as practitioner in the field It explains the basics what can be expected what approaches may be taken and what outcomes might be forthcoming and asks what we can reasonably expect a micromorphological approach to archaeological contexts data and problems to tell us The twelve case studies are taken from Britain Europe and the Near East They illustrate how past landscape change can be discovered and deciphered whether you are primarily a digger environmentalist or soil micromorphologist Based on the author s extensive experience of investigating buried and eroded landscapes the book develops new ways of looking at conventional models of landscape change With an extensive glossary bibliography and more than 100 illustrations it will be an essential text and reference tool for students academics and professionals
