psychological behavioural or neural immaturity but instead because they are denied the vote This conclusion is reached through accounts of the nature of criminal culpability desert for wrongdoing strength of legal reasons and what it is to have a say over the law The centrepiece of this discussion is the theory of criminal culpability To be criminally culpable is for one s criminal act to manifest a failure to grant sufficient weight to the legal reasons to refrain The stronger the legal reasons then the greater the criminal culpability Those who lack a say over the law it is argued have weaker legal reasons to refrain from crime than those who have a say They are therefore reduced in criminal culpability and deserve lesser punishment for their crimes Children are owed leniency then because of the political meaning of age rather than because of its psychological meaning This position has implications for criminal justice policy with respect to among other things the interrogation of children suspected of crimes and the enfranchisement of adult felons
