Abstract

Social cohesion and a sustainable labour market remain the aims of sustainable development policy. However, income inequalities and labour market policies are more often separately analysed. To fill the identified research gap, our article presents the results of an analysis of interactions between active and passive labour market policies and income inequalities in the European Union. The 27 countries were divided into two clusters based on their active and passive labour market policy (LMP) expenditures in 2019. These clusters sustain the basis for analysing the interactions between LMP and income inequalities in its different measures. The results reveal that labour market interventions interact with income inequalities, decreasing disposable income inequalities (equalising the disposable income after transfers and taxes) and therefore contributing to social cohesion. This paper concerns social cohesion as the manifestation of intragenerational justice.

The Aftermath of 'Real Existing Socialism' in Eastern Europe Anne Lorentzen,Marianne Rostgaard,2016-07-27 This selection of studies discusses potentials and barriers to social and industrial change in Central and Eastern Europe It is argued that levers of change in today's international setting primarily must be found within the countries themselves The main themes addressed in the book are firstly the formation of new social classes and institutions regulating social and economic life Secondly the reshaping of intra firm as well as inter firm relations and thirdly links between firms and public authorities including R D institutions

Hungary since 1945 Árpád von Klimó,2017-12-14 Lying on the political fault line between East and West for the past seventy five years the significance of Hungary in geopolitical terms has far outweighed the modest size of its population This book charts the main events of these tumultuous decades including the 1956 Uprising the end of Hungarian communism entry into the European Union and the rise to power of Viktor Orbán and the national conservative ruling party Fidesz

Gender Inequality in the Eastern European Labour Market Giovanni Razzu,2016-10-26 Under communism there was in the countries of Eastern Europe a high level of gender equality in the labour market particularly in terms of high participation rates by women The transition from communism has upset this situation with different impacts in the different countries This book presents a comprehensive overview of gender and the labour market since the fall of communism in a wide range of Eastern European countries Each country chapter describes the nature of inequality in the particular country and goes on to examine the factors responsible for this including government policies changing social attitudes levels of educational attainment and the impact of motherhood Overall the book provides an interesting comparison to the situation in Western developed countries outlining differences and similarities No one single Eastern European model emerges while as in Western developed countries a range of experiences and trends is the norm
