Performing the Community Cora Govers, 2006 Economic liberalization modern mass media and new religious and political movements have touched even the most remote areas in Mexico and the Northern Highlands of the state of Puebla are no exception When this coincides with recent infrastructures such as roads and electricity and new income sources from cash crop production and urban migration the nature of rural communities rapidly changes This study shows how the people of the Totonac mountain village of Nanacatlán deal with their increasingly pluriform and differentiated local world By performing stories rituals and exchanges they have countered centrifugal cultural and social forces Rather than leading to the demise of the community modernization and globalization thus seem to have reinforced the sense of local belonging How is this possible This anthropological analysis points at the simultaneous efforts of new and old cultural brokers ritual specialists and healers as well as young migrants who recreate the community by linking the outside world to local customs Their initiatives are taken up by women crucial for community building through elaborate food exchanges and men whose involvement is central to public ritual life Their combined efforts create a living community and link the village past to its rural urban present and future as a place of belonging in times of change Cora Govers is a senior staff member at the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research NWO Twin Plant News, 1991
