Elster, Marija Gimbutas, Colin Renfrew, 1977-12-31 The first of 2 volumes reporting on excavations at a middle neolithic to early bronze age site in northeast Greece Vol 1 presents the full sequence of culture exposed by excavation of this settlement mound 10 5 m deep Further studies define the environment during the 3 millennia of occupation and clarify the changing pattern of human subsistence over time The chronological relationships for the Aegean the Balkans and Anatolia are examined in detail      The Burnt House LP Faye Kellerman, 2007-08-07 At 8 15 in the morning a small commuter plane carrying forty seven passengers crashes into an apartment building in Granada Hills California Shock waves ripple through Los Angeles as L A P D Lieutenant Peter Decker works overtime to calm rampant fears of a 9 11 type terror attack But a grisly mystery lives inside the plane's charred and twisted wreckage. The fate of an unaccounted-for flight attendant twenty-eight-year-old Roseanne Dresden remains a question mark more than a month after the horrific event when the young woman's irate stepfather calls insisting that she was never onboard the doomed plane. Instead, he claims she was most likely murdered by her abusive, unfaithful husband. But why then was Roseanne's name included on the passenger list? As the jagged pieces slowly fall into place, a frightening picture begins to form: a mind-searing portrait of unimaginable evil that will challenge Decker's and Rina's own beliefs about guilt and innocence and justice.

Trypillia Mega-Sites and European Prehistory Johannes Müller, Knut Rassmann, Mykhailo Videiko, 2016-01-22. In European prehistory, population agglomerations of more than 10,000 inhabitants per site are a seldom phenomenon. A big surprise to the archaeological community was the discovery of Trypillia mega-sites of more than 250 hectares and with remains of more than 2,000 houses by a multidisciplinary approach of Soviet and Ukrainian archaeology, including aerial photography, geophysical prospection, and excavations nearly 50 years ago. The extraordinary development took place at the border of the North Pontic Forest Steppe and Steppe zone ca. 4100–3400 BCE. Since then, many questions arose which are of main relevance: Why, how, and under which environmental conditions did Trypillia mega-sites develop? How long did they last? Were social and/or ecological reasons responsible for this social experiment? Are Trypillia and the similar-sized settlement of Uruk two different concepts of social behaviour? Paradigm change in fieldwork and excavation strategies enabled research teams during the last decade to analyse the mega-sites in their spatial and social complexity. High-precision geophysics, targeted excavations, and a new design of systematic field strategies deliver empirical data representative for the large sites. Archaeological research contributed immensely to aspects of anthropogenic-induced steppe development and subsistence concepts that did not reach the carrying capacities. Probabilistic models based on <sup>14</sup>C dates made the contemporaneity of the mega-site house structures most probable. In consequence, Trypillia mega-sites are an independent European phenomenon that contrasts both concepts of urbanism and social stratification that is seen with similar demographic figures in Mesopotamia. The new Trypillia research can be read as the methodological progress in European archaeology.

Fragmentation in Archaeology John Chapman, 2013-04-15. Fragmentation in Archaeology revolutionises archaeological studies of material culture by arguing that the deliberate physical fragmentation of objects and their often structured deposition lies at the core of the archaeology of the Mesolithic, Neolithic, and Copper Age of Central and Eastern Europe. John Chapman draws on detailed evidence from the Balkans to explain such phenomena as the mass sherd deposition in pits and the wealth of artefacts found in the Varna cemetery to place the significance of fragmentation within a broad anthropological context.

Report Commonwealth Shipping Committee, 1915. Between Household and State Subah Dayal, 2024-12-24. For decades, scholars have examined the Mughal Empire, South Asia's largest and most powerful pre-colonial empire, to measure the greatness of its political, ideological, and cultural institutions. Between Household and State departs from dynastic narrations of the Mughal past to highlight the role of elite households and familial networks in shaping imperial power particularly in peninsular India the only region of the subcontinent never fully incorporated into the imperial realm Drawing upon rare documentary and literary materials in Persian and Urdu alongside the Dutch East India Company's archives the book takes us on a journey from military forts and regional courts in the Deccan to the weaving villages of the Coromandel Coast to examine how regional elite alliances feuds and material exchanges intersected with imperial institutions to create new forms of affinity belonging and social exclusion Between Household and State brings attention to the importance of ghar or home as an analytical framework for the creation of mobile forms of sovereignty that anchored the Mughal frontier across the variable geography of peninsular India in the seventeenth century
