Dear Sir In compliance with your request I enclose an unsigned draft of a letter dictated by Mr Arthur last November It was submitted to him a few days before he died and as he desired to make no further changes in the text I was to have a clean copy made for his signature but he was fatally stricken before that was done My Dear Curtis The graceful terms in which you propose to dedicate your book to me add still another obligation that I may not be able to repay I appointed you Secretary of the South American Commission without your solicitation because I knew your ability energy and industry would be felt a 9 they have been in the effort to bring our Spanish American neighbors ID to closer commercial and political relations with us I had given much consideration to the subject and realized what is made so clear in the Reports of the South American Commission that the future commercial prosperity of the United States required something to be done to extend our trade with the continent southward The Commission of which you were Secretary and subsequently became a member was intended as an initiatory step in that direction In my judgment it is not only the duty of the United States to encourage and assist our merchants and manufacturers in the expansion of their foreign trade by seeking new markets and furnishing facilities for reaching them but there is a higher achievement in promoting the welfare of our sister republics through the consistent exercise of every friendly office tending to secure their peaceable development and national prosperity I am sure your The Capitals of Spanish America will furnish our own people with trustworthy and late news about our neighbors to the southward and that your graphic pen will make the book as interesting as it is instructive I shall await its publication with very deep interest If my strength permits it will give me great pleasure to act upon your suggestion but just now I am hardly equal to the demands of my private correspondence About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works CAPITALS OF SPANISH AMER William Eleroy 1850-1911 Curtis, 2016-08-25 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work

Illustrated William Eleroy CURTIS,1888 Historic Cities of the Americas David F. Marley,2005-09-12 With rare maps prints and photographs this unique volume explores the dramatic history of the Americas through the birth and development of the hemisphere's great cities Written by award winning author David F Marley Historic Cities of the Americas covers the hard to find information of these cities earliest years including the unique aspects of each region's economy and demography such as the growth of local mining trade or industry The chronological layout aided by the numerous maps and photographs reveals the exceptional changes relocations destruction and transformations these cities endured to become the metropolises they are today Historic Cities of the Americas provides over 70 extensively detailed entries covering the foundation and evolution of the most significant urban areas in the western hemisphere Critically researched this work offers a rare look into the times prior to Christopher Columbus arrival in 1492 and explores the common difficulties overcome by these European conquered or founded cities as they flourished into some of the most influential locations in the world Spanish America Vol.1 (of 2) Richard Henry Bonnycastle, In this enlightened age Geography has assumed a form so new and interesting that it has become the study as well as the amusement of all ranks of society the philosopher peruses with admiring attention the details of the localities of distant climes and the mere reader instructs as well as amuses himself in turning over the pages of a geographical performance This science which till very lately bore so low a rank in the scale of intellectual attainment has arisen by the exertions of men of genius and the increasing commerce of the Atlantic states of Europe to a proud elevation amid the numerous objects of scientific research in fact it blends itself so minutely with almost all of them that in order to acquire a thorough knowledge of it it is necessary to study the whole circle of the arts and sciences Philosophy enables the geographic traveller to account for the ever varying appearances of nature which meet his wondering sight Mathematical knowledge gives him the means of calculating with accuracy the positions and forms of the places which arrest his attention in his progress and with his apparatus of Astronomical instruments whether he be in distant Inde on the snow capped summits of the Cordillera of the Andes or in the frozen regions of the north he is still able to fix the exact route which he intends to follow Painting or rather its twin sister Drawing is also an acquirement absolutely necessary for the man of research in this science as by its assistance he can point out to his brethren the surprising features of those distant regions which it is their lot to hear of but never to see and by this delightful art which may well be ranked among the first of gifts to man he can bring home to the imagination the forms of things unknown Poetry is not without its share in assisting to give just notions of geographic details as by its fascinating aid the ideas which we form of distant objects are heightened and impressed on our memories and without the fellowship of History Geography would prove the most uninteresting of studies But there are other branches of philosophy which have of late given a form and stability to the pursuit of knowledge in this science and by whose powerful co operation the march of geographical acquisition is daily spreading over a wider and more noble field Chemistry has within the last century assumed a character so widely different from its ancient bounds that the world is as it were a new region We have become acquainted with phenomena which were not before imagined to exist and we can trace the causes and consequently the effects of many of the operations of nature which had hitherto baffled all the efforts of man Geology Mineralogy and Oryctology have also as a consequence of the advanced state of chemical knowledge become so universally studied that no modern writer of travels ought to be unacquainted with at least their leading principles and to render his labours very acceptable to the public he should possess an accurate and extended knowledge of these branches of science Zoography has a close connection with the details of Modern Geography as without a description of the properties and forms of the various races of animals which all bounteous Providence has placed on the Earth for the sustenance or the use of man a mere outline of the features of kingdoms and states would be though not useless yet uninteresting Botany also takes an active part in the formation of works of this nature and perhaps no other science has a more pleasing share in such undertakings for every day and almost every hour discloses to the phytologist some new and singular variety of Nature s performance To be continue in this ebook

Cities of the World Stanley D. Brunn, Maureen Hays-Mitchell, Donald J. Zeigler, 2008 A fifth edition of this book is now available This fully updated and revised fourth edition of the classic text offers readers a comprehensive set of tools for understanding the urban landscape and by extension the world s politics cultures and economies Providing a sweeping overview of world urban geography a group of noted experts explores the eleven major global regions Liberally illustrated with a new selection of photographs maps and diagrams the text also includes a rich array of boxed vignettes Clearly written and timely this text will be invaluable for those teaching introductory or advanced classes on global cities regional geography and urban studies
