Eliason,John Patrick,2008-10-01 Career Development in the Schools describes a dynamic process that continues to evolve in its rationale and practice In many schools and in a variety of scholarly writings the status of career development is controversial Some observers assert that career development should be seen as a by product of all of the knowledge and activities that are incorporated in the educational experience In this view career development tends to be seen as a random process that happens in a natural almost magical way without specific direction or structured form However most career theorists would argue that the career development of students should be a major mission of the school a process too important to be only a by product of scattered learning and activities that are inherently uneven from student to student The prevailing contemporary perspective contends that career development in the schools should be planned have its own content derived from research and theory be systematically executed and use methods that are relevant to the developmental levels of students throughout elementary middle and senior high schools To further such ends several national models of content and practice have been formulated by the American School Counselor Association the National Career Development Revised Guidance Project and by other organizations to identify the components competencies and outcomes that students of different ages and aspirations need to acquire as they grow in maturity Several of these models are discussed at length in the various chapters of this book Career Decision Making W. Bruce Walsh,Samuel H. Osipow,2014-01-09 Keeping up with new developments in vocational psychology is important to both psychological practitioners and researchers This volume is devoted to presenting and evaluating important advances in the field of career decision making development and maturity More specifically it identifies reports and evaluates significant contemporary developments in vocational psychology and provides both professional workers and students with an informed understanding of the progress taking place in the field The history and theory of the assessment of career development and decision making are explored as well as advances in career planning systems An expanded context for the study and evaluation of career development variables is also described
