Russia in the Early Modern World Donald Ostrowski, 2022-01-25 A fundamental problem in studying early modern Russian history is determining Russia's historical development in relationship to the rest of the world. The focus throughout this book is on the continuity of Russian policies during the early modern period 1450-1800 and that those policies coincided with those of other successful contemporary Eurasian polities. The continuities occurred in the midst of constant change but neither one nor the other continuities or changes alone can account for Russia's success. Instead Russian rulers from Ivan III to Catherine II with their chief advisors managed to sustain a balance between the two. During the early modern period these Russian rulers invited into the country foreign experts to facilitate the transfer of technology and know-how mostly from Europe but also from Asia. In this respect they were willing to look abroad for solutions to domestic problems. Russia looked westward for military weaponry and techniques at the same time it was expanding eastward into the Eurasian heartland. The ruling elite and by extension the entire ruling class worked in cooperation with the ruler to implement policies. The Church played an active role in supporting the government and in seeking to eliminate opposition to the government.

Russian Bible Wars Stephen K. Batalden, 2013-03-14 Although biblical texts were known in Church Slavonic as early as the ninth century translation of the Bible into Russian came about only in the nineteenth century. Modern scriptural translation generated major religious and cultural conflict within the Russian Orthodox church. The resulting divisions left church authority particularly vulnerable to political pressures exerted upon it in the twentieth century. Russian Bible Wars illuminates the fundamental issues of authority that have divided modern Russian religious culture. Set within the theoretical debate over secularization the volume clarifies why the Russian Bible was issued relatively late and amidst great controversy. Stephen Batalden's study traces the development of biblical translation into Russian and of the Bible wars that then occurred in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries in Russia. The annotated bibliography of the Russian Bible identifies the different editions and their publication history.

Passwords to Paradise Nicholas Ostler, 2016-02-23 In the beginning was the Word and the Word was with God and the Word was God So opens the Gospel of John an ancient text translated into almost every language at once a compelling and beguiling metaphor for the Christian story of the Beginning To further complicate matters the words we read now are in any number of languages that would have been unknown or unrecognizable at the time of their composition The gospel may have been originally dictated or written in Aramaic but our only written source for the story is in Greek Today as your average American reader of the New Testament picks up his or her Bible off the shelf the phrase as it appears has been translated from various linguistic intermediaries before its current manifestation in modern English How to understand these words then when so many other translators languages and cultures have exercised some level of influence on them Christian tradition is not unique in facing this problem All religions if they have global aspirations have to change in order to spread their influence and often language has been the most powerful agent thereof Passwords to Paradise explores the effects that language difference and language conversion have wrought on the world's great faiths spanning more than two thousand years It is an original and intriguing perspective on the history of religion by a master linguistic historian
