Catalog of Copyright Entries. Third Series Library of Congress. Copyright Office, 1972 Immunology of Renal Disease C.D. Pusey, 2012-12-06 Although it has been appreciated for many years that immune processes underlie most types of glomerulonephritis it is the recent explosion in knowledge of cellular and molecular immunology that has prompted another book on the subject The understanding of the mechanisms involved in renal injury requires the integration of information from in vitro cell culture systems experimental models of disease and clinical studies This volume draws on all of these sources in an attempt to explain current concepts of nephritis Increased emphasis is placed on autoimmune processes as opposed to the deposition of circulating immune complexes although it will be apparent that these may overlap in the area of in situ immune complex formation Of central importance in autoimmunity is the relationship between antigen presenting cells including B cells expressing MHC class II molecules autoantigenic peptides T helper lymphocytes and various effector cells The mechanisms by which the immune system may lead to tissue injury are also becoming better understood and consideration is given to the role of inflammatory cells the complement proteins and soluble factors such as cytokines and eicosanoids Paediatric Allergy and Clinical Immunology (As Applied to Atopic Disease) Cecil

Volume 4 Immunopathology Noel Rose, 2013-06-29 This comprehensive treatise on the reticuloendothelial system is a project jointly shared by individual members of the Reticuloendothelial RE Society and biomedical scientists in general who are interested in the intricate system of cells and molecular moieties derived from these cells which constitute the RES It may now be more fashionable in some quarters to consider these cells as part of what is called the mononuclear phagocytic system or the lymphoreticular system Nevertheless because of historical developments and current interest in the subject by investigators from many diverse areas it seems advantageous to present in one comprehensive treatise current information and knowledge concerning basic aspects of the RES such as morphology biochemistry phylogeny and ontogeny physiology and pharmacology as well as clinical areas including immunopathology cancer infectious diseases allergy and hypersensitivity It is anticipated that by presenting information concerning these apparently heterogeneous topics under the unifying umbrella of the RES attention will be focused on the similarities as well as interactions among the cell types constituting the RES from the viewpoint of various disciplines The treatise editors and their editorial board consisting predominantly of the editors of individual volumes are extremely grateful for the enthusiastic cooperation and enormous task undertaken by members of the biomedical community in general and especially by members of the American as well as European and Japanese Reticuloendothelial Societies New perspectives in clinical microbiology W.

Brumfitt, 2012-12-06 If the organizers of the excellent symposium on which this book is based had wanted to devise an appropriate dramatic opening they could not have done better than to have the first speaker fail to appear because he was incarcerated in his high security isolation unit caring for a patient suffering from green monkey disease In his consequently undelivered paper now published in this book he understandably dwells a little on the place both philosophical and physical of the laboratory in the investigation of highly transmissible infections and this subject characterizes the two themes that run through the chapters of this book the relative roles of microbiologist and clinician in the investigation and management of infected patients and the techniques management and diseases most recently to come under scrutiny In addition to some airing of the question which some of us regard as pressing as to what degree the microbiologist should be clinical and the clinician microbiological there is welcome attention by the clinical haematologist and immunologist to humoral and cellular factors in infection that are acknowledged to be crucial but relatively understudied New looks at old diseases urinary infections urethritis and enteritis and at an old drug metronidazole for new indications are all provided by authors who are at the advancing fronts of those subjects The proceedings completely updated and revised for this publication seem to me to have been entirely successful in capturing the stimulation and enjoyment of the excellent and instructive symposium
