

Dear,

There's a weight on my heart that I cannot ignore anymore. I remember when we met, the day the world seemed brighter, infused with laughter and light. We shared our dreams and our vulnerabilities, each detail etched into my heart like a story waiting to be told. We danced under the stars, barefoot and carefree, our hearts in rhythm with the universe, as if nothing else mattered but us. I still feel the warmth of your hand in mine, a silent promise of love and companionship. But, my love, I've realized that love isn't enough to hold two people together.

I can't bear to see the hurt in your eyes when we argue, the way your smile fades when we can't find a common ground. I have come to the unfortunate realization that our paths, which once seemed so perfectly intertwined, have begun to diverge. I will forever cherish the love we shared, and part of me will always yearn for those days of unfiltered laughter and warmth. But I know in my heart that this is the right decision. It hurts me more than you can imagine, but I believe it will save us more pain in the future.
