Machor, 2011-04-01 James L. Machor offers a sweeping exploration of how American fiction was received in both public and private spheres in the United States before the Civil War. Machor takes four antebellum authors: Edgar Allan Poe, Herman Melville, Catharine Sedgwick, and Caroline Chesebro, and analyzes how their works were published, received, and interpreted. Drawing on discussions found in book reviews and in private letters and diaries, Machor examines how middle-class readers of the time engaged with contemporary fiction and how fiction reading evolved as an interpretative practice in nineteenth-century America. Through careful analysis, Machor illuminates how the reading practices of nineteenth-century Americans shaped not only the experiences of these writers at the time but also the way the writers were received in the twentieth century. What Machor reveals is that these authors were received in ways strikingly different from how they are currently read, thereby shedding significant light on their present status in the literary canon in comparison to their critical and popular positions in their own time. Machor deftly combines response and reception criticism and theory with work in the history of reading to engage with groundbreaking scholarship in historical hermeneutics. In so doing, Machor takes us ever closer to understanding the particular and varying reading strategies of historical audiences and how they impacted authors' conceptions of their own readership.

The Works of Jack London: Novels, Short Stories, Poems, Plays, Memoirs & Essays Jack London, 2023-11-26 In The Works of Jack London: Novels, Short Stories, Poems, Plays, Memoirs, Essays, readers are invited to explore the multifaceted literary corpus of one of America's most influential writers. This comprehensive compilation reflects London's mastery of narrative structure and vivid prose, encapsulating themes of adventure, survival, and the human condition. The collection spans diverse genres, showcasing London's ability to intertwine rugged naturalism with deep psychological insights, often set against the backdrop of the Alaskan wilderness and industrialized society. His diction is rich, and his urgency palpable, offering a poignant critique of capitalism and an exploration of unvarnished human instincts. Jack London, born in 1876, was a trailblazer of the proletarian literature movement and a prominent figure in American literary history. His experiences working in various labor roles, combined with his adventurous spirit and love for nature, profoundly influenced his writing. Additionally, London's commitment to social change and dedication to portraying the plight of the working class adds depth and authenticity to his narratives, revealing his belief in the power of literature to inspire action. This compelling anthology is a must-read for those seeking to understand the breadth of London's ambition and the historical context that shaped his worldview. Whether you are a seasoned admirer or new to his work, this collection offers invaluable insights into the complexities of human life and the struggles of existence in a rapidly industrializing world. In this enriched edition, we have carefully created added value for your reading experience.
