The Industrialization Of Sao Paulo 1880 1945:

The Industrialization of São Paulo, 1800-1945 Warren Dean, 2014-11-06 São Paulo is one of the few places in the underdeveloped world where an advanced industrial system has grown out of a tropical raw material exporting economy. By 1960 there were 830 000 industrial workers in the state producing 3.3 billion worth of goods. It had become Latin America's largest industrial center. This is a study of the early years of manufacturing in São Paulo: how it was influenced by the growth and decline of the coffee trade; where it found its markets, its credit and its labor force; and how it confronted the competition of imports. The principal focus, however, is on the manufacturers themselves: whose perceptions of their opportunities determined how industrialization was brought about. Warren Dean discusses their social origins, their connections with other sectors of the elite, their attitudes toward workers and consumers, and their view of the potentialities of economic development. He analyzes the political activities of the manufacturers to discover both how they promoted their interests and how they confronted the larger challenge of social and political transformation. Paradoxically, the industrialization of São Paulo is not a success story of private entrepreneurship. Until after World War II, manufacturing grew quite slowly, and its hallmarks were always low productivity, technical backwardness, and consumer hostility. More than half of the state's present large-scale factory production, and nearly all of its heavy industry, was built by foreign capital or state enterprise, not by privately owned firms. Dean shows that this outcome is partly a consequence of the historical experience of domestic manufacture. Throughout the book, the author points out the peculiar articulations of the industrial system of São Paulo, the significant social and political interests that determined what kinds of development were possible. The result is an exposition of an unusual case study in twentieth-century economic development.

An Economic and Demographic History of São Paulo, 1850-1950 Francisco Vidal Luna, Herbert S. Klein, 2018-06-12 São Paulo, by far the most populated state in Brazil, has an economy to rival that of Colombia or Venezuela. Its capital city is the fourth largest metropolitan area in the world. How did São Paulo, once a frontier province of little importance, become one of the most vital agricultural and industrial regions of the world? This volume explores the transformation of São Paulo through an economic lens. Francisco Vidal Luna and Herbert S. Klein provide a synthetic overview of the growth of São Paulo from 1850 to 1950, analyzing statistical data on demographics, agriculture, finance, trade, and infrastructure. Quantitative analysis of primary sources, including almanacs, censuses, newspapers, state and ministerial level government documents, and annual government reports, offers granular insight into state building, federalism, the coffee economy, early industrialization, urbanization, and demographic shifts. Luna and Klein compare São Paulo's transformation to other regions from the same period, making this an essential reference for understanding the impact of early periods of economic growth.

Social Change, Industrialization, and the Service Economy in São Paulo, 1950-2020 Francisco Vidal Luna, Herbert S. Klein, 2022-07-19 In the 1950s-80s, Brazil built one of the most advanced industrial networks among the developing countries initially concentrated in the state of São Paulo. But from the 1980s decentralization of industry spread to other states reducing São Paulo's relative importance in the country's industrial product. This volume draws on social economic and demographic data to document the accelerated industrialization of the state and its subsequent shift to a service economy amidst worsening social and economic inequality. Through its cultural institutions, universities, banking and corporate sectors, the municipality of São Paulo would become a world metropolis. At the same time, given its rapid growth from 2 million to 12 million residents in this period, São Paulo dealt with problems of distribution, housing and governance. This significant volume elucidates these and other trends during the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries and will be an invaluable reference for scholars of history, policy and the economy in Latin America.

Blacks & Whites in São Paulo, Brazil, 1888-1988 George Reid Andrews, 1991. For much of the twentieth century Brazil enjoyed an international reputation as a racial democracy, but that image has been largely undermined in recent decades by research suggesting the existence of widespread racial inequality. George Reid Andrews provides the first thoroughly documented history of Brazilian racial inequality from the abolition of slavery in 1888 up to the late 1980s, showing how economic, social and political changes in Brazil during the last one hundred years have shaped race relations. No laws of segregation or apartheid exist in Brazil, but by looking carefully at government policies, data on employment, mainstream and Afro-Brazilian newspapers and a variety of other sources, Andrews traces pervasive discrimination against Afro-Brazilians over time. He draws his evidence from the country's largest and most economically important state, São Paulo, showing how race relations were affected by its transformation from a plantation-based economy to South America's most urban industrialized society. The book focuses first on Afro-Brazilians' entry into the agricultural and urban working class after the abolition of slavery. This transition, Andrews argues, was seriously hampered by state policies giving the many European immigrants of the period preference over black workers. As immigration declined and these policies were overturned in the late 1920s, black laborers began to be employed in agriculture and industry on nearly equal terms with whites. Andrews then surveys efforts of blacks to move into the middle class during the 1900s. He finds that informal racial solidarity among middle-class whites has tended to exclude Afro-Brazilians from the professions and other white-collar jobs. Andrews traces how discrimination throughout the century led Afro-Brazilians to mobilize first through the antislavery movement of the 1880s, then through such social and political organizations of the 1920s and 1930s as the Brazilian Black Front, and finally through the anti-racism movements of the 1970s and 1980s. These recent movements have provoked much debate among Brazilians over their national image as a racial democracy. It remains to be seen, Andrews concludes, whether that debate will result in increased opportunities for black Brazilians. Winner of the 1993 Arthur P. Whitaker Prize. The Oxford Handbook of Latin American History Jose C. Moya, 2011. This Oxford Handbook comprehensively examines the field of Latin American history. The Dismantling of Brazil's Old Republic Ilan Rachum, 2015-11-17. In the years 1922

1930 Brazil's political and cultural arenas were bestirred by distinct movements of protest and demand for change forcing a great shift in the manner Brazilians perceived themselves and their country and shaping a national climate of opinion which led to a revolution and substantial reforms. This book follows the progression of these events with special focus on the rebelling young military officers and the modernist artists highlighting their internal controversies and evolving ideologies. Additional coverage is given to the growing demands for change among the urban population particularly as articulated by the daily press and to intellectuals who expressed their opinions on pressing national problems all of which attest to not only a change of ideas but an initial polarization into opposing and rival political currents. Unlike other historians the comprehensive answers presented here by the author with regard to the underlying causes of the transition stress the impact of early twentieth century cultural change.

The Second Conquest of Latin America Steven C. Topik, Allen Wells, 2010-02-01 Between 1850 and 1930 Latin America's integration into the world economy through the export of raw materials transformed the region. This encounter was nearly as dramatic as the conquistadors' epic confrontation with Native American civilizations centuries before. An emphasis on foreign markets and capital replaced protectionism and self-sufficiency as the hemisphere's guiding principles. In many ways the means employed during this period to tie Latin America more closely to western Europe and North America resemble strategies currently in vogue. Much can be learned from analyzing the first time that Latin Americans embraced export-led growth. This book focuses on the impact of three key export commodities: coffee, henequen, and petroleum. The authors concentrate on these rather than on national economies because they illustrate more concretely the interaction between the environment, natural and human resources, and the world economy. By analyzing how different products spun complex webs of relationships with their respective markets, the essays in this book illuminate the tensions and contradictions found in the often conflictive relationship between the local and the global, between agency and the not-so-invisible hand. Ultimately, the contributors argue that the results of the second conquest were not one-sided as Latin Americans and foreigners together forged a new economic order, one riddled with contradictions that Latin America is still attempting to resolve today.

The Political Economy of the Brazilian State, 1889-1930 Steven Topik, 1987-07-01 In this first overview of the Brazilian republican state based on extensive primary source material, Steven Topik demonstrates that well before the disruption of the export economy in 1929, the Brazilian state was one of the most interventionist in Latin America. This study counters the previous general belief that before 1930 Brazil was dominated by an export oligarchy comprised of European and North American capitalists and that only later did the state become prominent in the country's economic development. Topik examines the state's performance during the First Republic, 1889-1930, in four sectors: finance, the coffee trade, railroads, and industry. By looking at the controversies in these areas, he explains how domestic interclass and international struggles shaped policy and notes the degree to which the state acted relatively independently of civil society. Topik's primary concern is the actions of state officials and whether their decisions reflected the demands of the ruling class He shows that conflicting interests of fractions of the ruling class and foreign investors gradually led to far greater state participation than any of the participants originally desired and that the structure of the economy and of society not the intentions of the actors best explains the state s economic presence
