Re-visioning Historical Fiction for Young Readers Kim Wilson,2011-06-15 This study is concerned with how readers are positioned to interpret the past in historical fiction for children and young adults Looking at literature published within the last thirty to forty years Wilson identifies and explores a prevalent trend for re visioning and rewriting the past according to modern social and political ideological assumptions Fiction within this genre while concerned with the past at the level of content is additionally concerned with present views of that historical past because of the future to which it is moving Specific areas of discussion include the identification of a new sub genre Living history fiction stories of Joan of Arc historical fiction featuring agentic females the very popular Scholastic Press historical journal series fictions of war and historical fiction featuring multicultural discourses Wilson observes specific traits in historical fiction written for children most notably how the notion of positive progress into the future is nuanced differently in this literature in which the concept of progress from the past is inextricably linked to the protagonist's potential for agency and the realization of subjectivity The genre consistently manifests a concern with identity construction that in turn informs and influences how a metanarrative of positive progress is played out This book engages in a discussion of the functionality of the past within the genre and offers an interpretative frame for the sifting out of the present from the past in historical fiction for young readers The

Grades 4-6 Reviving Reading Alison M.G. Follos, 2006-07-30 Drawing on her long experience as a school librarian the author uses this middle school library programming book to help you promote free voluntary reading through innovative workshops staff training collection development and collaborative curricular planning Her goal to revive the enthusiasm for reading that is often lost by the middle school years Her recommendation creative library literacy programming designed to pique flagging interest in reading for pleasure Chapters focus on how to use the school's calendar and curriculum to get the time needed for the focused program as well as ways to manipulate budgets get grants and other monies to build a strong literature oriented program and collection One chapter focuses entirely on how to get faculty to become readers of YA and children's literature in order to become models for their students Other programs discussed are author visits book fairs whole school reading programs journaling for readers and many more Also included is an annotated bibliography of great reads Grades 4-12 Closing the Gap Karen Keaton Jackson, Sandra Vavra, 2007-09-01 Without contraries there is no progression William Blake This is a book about reality and hope Its chapters reframe the concept of gap acknowledging distances for example acknowledging old insights and theory while also honoring teacher discovery However it refuses to bow under the weight of these challenges Its contributors focus instead on how to overcome acknowledged inadequacies in learning how to teach writing as well as how to practice principled literacy instruction These contributors see gaps not as unbridgeable chasms but rather as opportunities to educate their students to use writing to understand the broader context of their education and pre-service candidates to adapt curriculum creatively Contributors include new and seasoned secondary school teachers graduate students and university faculty who together remind us of old insights needing to be passed along Villanueva and show us new practices that challenge the conventions of the status quo and promote social justice To close the gaps in short they demonstrate how rhetoric and truth are intertwined In a time when too many children continue to be left behind this book should be required reading for all literacy teachers because it is in our continued willingness to learn from each other that hope resides Teaching with Children's Literature James Barton,2001 War &
