Writing and the Writer Frank Smith, 2013-11-05 Exploring the relationship between the writer and what he she happens to be writing this text by one of the foremost scholars in the field of literacy and cognition is a unique and original examination of writing as a craft and as a cognitive activity The book is concerned with the physical activity of writing the way the nervous system recruits the muscles to move the pen or manipulate the typewriter It considers the necessary disciplines of writing such as knowledge of the conventions of grammar spelling and punctuation In particular there is a concern with how the skills underlying all these aspects of writing are learned and orchestrated This second edition includes many new insights from the author's significant experience and from recent research providing a framework for thinking about the act of writing in both theoretical and practical ways A completely new chapter on computers and writing is included as well as more about the role of reading in learning to write about learning to write at all ages and about such controversial issues as whether and how genre theory should be taught Written in nontechnical language this text will continue to be accessible and stimulating to a wide range of readers concerned with writing literacy thinking and education Furthermore it has an educational orientation therefore proving relevant and useful to anyone who teaches about writing or endeavors to teach writing

Writing the Social Text Richard Brown, 2017-07-05 During the past decade it has become commonplace to interpret social and cultural reality the very groundwork of the social sciences as linguistic constructions Not only is society viewed as a text but scientific texts themselves are seen as rhetorical constructions This collection of scholarly essays begins with an overview of this emerging field and covers the specific stylistic practices by which social scientists create objective or true representations of society The volume closes with a consideration of the more telling challenges to the rhetorics of the social sciences and how these might be encompassed or overcome

Landmark Essays on Writing Across the Curriculum Charles Bazerman, David Russell, 2020-11-25 Rhetoric as a general teaching while preaching locality of action and guidelines for handling that locality has tended from the beginning to serve as a universality It has offered a generalized techne with only limited categories appropriate for all discursive situations at least for those that were not excluded from the realm of rhetoric Nonetheless from its beginnings rhetoric limited its interests to certain activity fields such as law government religion and most important the educators of leaders in these activity fields This collection presents landmarks showing where the Writing Across the Curriculum WAC and Writing in the Disciplines WID movements have gone They have opened up a number of prospects that were impossible to see when rhetoric and composition confined their gaze to relatively few discursive activities This suggests that the rhetorical landscape is becoming more complex and interesting as well as more responsive to life in the complex differentiated societies that have emerged in the last few centuries This volume will reveal to scholars and researchers a range of possibilities for the study of disciplinary discourse and its teaching and suggest to them new prospects for the future and for the better

Writing Business Francesca Bargiela-Chiappini, Catherine Nickerson, 2014-06-11 Writing Business Genres Media and Discourses offers an analysis of the genres and functions of written discourse in the business context involving a variety of modes of communication The evolution of new forms of writing is a key focus of this collection and is only partly attributable to the ever increasing application of technology at work Alongside machine mediated texts such as electronic mail and computer generated correspondence the contextualised analyses of both traditional genres such as facsimiles and direct mailing and of lesser studied texts such as invitations for bids contracts business magazines and ceremonial speeches reveal a rich complexity in the forms of communication evolved by organisations and the individuals who work within them in response to the demands of the social organisational and cultural contexts in which they operate This rich textual variation is matched by a discussion of a range of methodological approaches to the development of business writing skills including rhetorical analysis organisational communication analysis social constructionism genre analysis and survey and experimental methods Using authentic data and benefiting from a fresh interdisciplinary approach the volume will be of interest to students and researchers of business communication Language for Specific Purposes LSP English for Specific Purposes ESP and sociolinguistics

The Psychology of Writing Ronald T. Kellogg, 1999-08-05 The human ability to render meaning through symbolic media such as art dance music and speech defines in many ways the uniqueness of our species One symbolic medium in particular written expression has aroused increasing interest among researchers across disciplines in areas as diverse as the humanities education and the social sciences because it offers a fascinating window into the processes underlying the creation and enunciation of symbolic representation In The Psychology of Writing cognitive psychologist Ronald T Kellogg reviews and integrates the fast growing multidisciplinary field of composition research a field that seeks to understand how people formulate and express their thoughts with the symbols of written text By examining the production of written text the book fills a large gap in cognitive psychology which until now has focused on speech production comprehension and reading while virtually ignoring how people write Throughout the author masterfully examines the many critical factors that come together during the writing process including writer personality work schedules method of composing and knowledge In providing an important new theoretical framework that enables readers from a wide range of backgrounds to navigate the extensive composition literature the author drives home the profound significance of meaning making as a defining feature of human cognition Kellogg not only draws from the work of leading composition scholars but quotes insights into the writing process proffered by some of the most gifted practitioners of the writing craft including E M Forster John Updike and Samuel Johnson Engaging and lively The Psychology of Writing is the perfect introduction to the subject for students researchers journalists and interested general readers

Beginning Writers in the Zone of Proximal Development Elizabeth Petrick-Steward, 2012-10-12 How do young children bridge the gap between writing a story with pictures and writing with words How children learn to use written words to tell a story is a topic important to both cognitive development and early literacy instruction Using the theoretical framework developed by Vygotsky the behavior of a group of prekindergarten children as they author two consecutive pieces of writing is analyzed The children tell their stories at first with spoken words and pictures As they discuss their work in progress in public conferences they discover how to build on and combine existing skills to produce a new skill telling stories with written words Current descriptive and theoretical perspectives on beginning writing are presented in this volume with a particular focus on Vygotsky's concept of the zone of proximal development a period of sensitivity in which learning advances The proposed mechanism of change is verbal mediation talk among peers and teachers as they discuss work in progress which moves the children through the zone of proximal development An open whole language approach to literacy instruction makes the classroom in this book an ideal arena in which to observe verbal mediation in operation Children are free to question criticize and argue and in the process they collectively advance their developing ability to use written language The work is unique in that the rich and comprehensive data record is reproduced in its entirety More than 400 illustrations of the children's products two books apiece pictured before and after the children's revisions are included along with transcripts of the conferences about each of the pages permitting direct observation of the effects of verbal mediation This dynamic study documents change during a period of time when specific learning is occurring and provides strong support for the value and power of Vygotsky's theoretical framework CSCL, Theory and Practice of an Emerging Paradigm Timothy D. Landmark Essays on ESL Writing Tony Silva, Paul Kei Matsuda, 2013-10-31 In recent years the number of nonnative speakers of English in colleges and universities in North America has increased dramatically. As a result more and more writing teachers have found themselves working with these English as a Second Language (ESL) students in writing classes that are designed primarily with monolingual native English speaking students in mind. Since the majority of institutions require these students to enroll in writing courses at all levels it is becoming increasingly important for all writing teachers to be aware of the presence and special linguistic and cultural needs of ESL writers. This increase in the ESL population has over the last 40 years been paralleled by a similar growth in research on ESL writing and writing instruction research that writing teachers need to be familiar with in order to work effectively with ESL writers in writing classrooms of all levels and types. Until recently however this body of knowledge has not been very accessible to writing teachers and researchers who do not specialize in second language research and instruction. This volume is an attempt to remedy this problem by providing a sense of how ESL writing scholarship has evolved over the last four decades. It brings together 15 articles that address various issues in second language writing in general and ESL writing in particular. In selecting articles for inclusion the editors tried to take a principled approach. The articles included in this volume have been chosen from a large database of publications in second language writing. The editors looked for works that mirrored the state of the art when they were published and made a conscious effort to represent a wide variety of perspectives, contributions, and issues in the field. To provide a sense of the evolution of the field this collection is arranged in chronological order.

Handbook of Reading Research Michael L. Kamil, Peter B. Mosenthal, P. David Pearson, Rebecca Barr, 2014-04-08 In Volume III as in Volumes I and II the classic topics of reading are included from vocabulary and comprehension to reading instruction in the classroom and in addition each contributor was asked to include a brief history that chronicles the legacies within each of the volume's many topics. However on the whole Volume III is not about tradition. Rather it explores the verges of reading research between the time Volume II was published in 1991 and the research conducted after this date. The editors identified two broad themes as representing the myriad of verges that have emerged since Volumes I and II were published: 1 broadening the definition of reading and 2 broadening the reading research program. The particulars of these new themes and topics are addressed.

Handbook of Research on Writing Charles Bazerman, 2009-03-04 The Handbook of Research on Writing ventures to sum up inquiry over the last few decades on what we know about writing and the many ways we know it. How do people write? How do they learn to write and develop as writers? Under what conditions and for what purposes do people write? What resources and technologies do we use to write? How did our current forms and practices of writing emerge within social history? What impacts has writing had on society and the individual? What does it mean to be and to learn to be an active participant in contemporary systems of meaning? This cornerstone volume advances the field by aggregating the broad ranging interdisciplinary multidimensional strands of writing research and bringing them together into a common intellectual space Endeavoring to synthesize what has been learned about writing in all nations in recent decades it reflects a wide scope of international research activity with attention to writing at all levels of schooling and in all life situations Chapter authors all eminent researchers come from disciplines as diverse as anthropology archeology typography communication studies linguistics journalism sociology rhetoric composition law medicine education history and literacy studies The Handbook's 37 chapters are organized in five sections The History of Writing Writing in Society Writing in Schooling Writing and the Individual Writing as Text This volume in summing up what is known about writing deepens our experience and appreciation of writing in ways that will make teachers better at teaching writing and all of its readers better as individual writers It will be interesting and useful to scholars and researchers of writing to anyone who teaches writing in any context at any level and to all those who are just curious about writing

Contrastive Rhetoric Ulla Connor,1996-01-26 Shows how a person's first language and culture influence writing in a second language

Theory and Practice of Writing William Grabe,Robert B. Kaplan,2014-09-25 This book undertakes a general framework within which to consider the complex nature of the writing task in English both as a first and as a second language The volume explores varieties of writing different purposes for learning to write extended text and cross cultural variation among second language writers The volume overviews textlinguistic research explores process approaches to writing discusses writing for professional purposes and contrastive rhetoric It proposes a model for text construction as well as a framework for a more general theory of writing Later chapters organised around seventy five themes for writing instruction are devoted to the teaching of writing at the beginning intermediate and advanced levels Writing assessment and other means for responding to writing are also discussed William Grabe and Robert Kaplan summarise various theoretical strands that have been recently explored by applied linguists and other writing researchers and draw these strands together into a coherent overview of the nature of written text Finally they suggest methods for the teaching of writing consistent with the nature processes and social context of writing

Playing the corporate language game Catherine Nickerson,2021-11-01

An increasing number of business people are regularly required to communicate effectively and efficiently in a language that is not their own. The tasks that international business writers carry out have therefore become a recent focus of attention for communication researchers and language practitioners particularly within multinational corporations where the majority of the workforce needs to communicate both in English and the local language. Playing the Corporate Language Game explores the relationship between context and text and presents a comprehensive framework for the investigation of the communication practices that are currently in use in international business. It includes an extensive survey of multinational corporations in the Netherlands and it goes on to present a detailed analysis of the genres and discourse strategies that could be identified in a large corpus of authentic documents written by Dutch and British writers consisting of letters, reports and e-mail messages. There is detailed discussion throughout of those aspects of national and corporate culture that impact the evolution and linguistic realisation of business genres in multinational multilingual settings. This volume will be of interest to students and researchers of applied linguistics and business communication and all those concerned with Language for Specific Purposes and the interface between local languages and International Business English. Student Writing

Theresa M. Lillis, 2002-01-04 Student Writing presents an accessible and thought provoking study of academic writing practices. Informed by composition research from the US and academic literacies studies from the UK, the book challenges current official discourse on writing as a skill. Lillis argues for an approach which sees student writing as social practice. The book draws extensively on a three year study with ten non traditional students in higher education and their experience of academic writing. Using case study material including literacy history interviews, extended discussions with students about their writing of discipline specific essays and extracts from essays, Lillis identifies the following as three significant dimensions to academic writing: Access to higher education and to its language and literacy representational resources; Regulation of meaning making in academic writing; Desire for participation in higher education and for choices over ways of meaning in academic writing. Student Writing access regulation desire raises questions about why academics write as they do, who benefits from such writing, which meanings are valued and how, on what terms outsiders get to be insiders and at what costs. Fragments of Rationality Lester Faigley, 2014-07-12 In an insightful assessment of the study and teaching of writing against the larger theoretical, political and technological upheavals of the past thirty years, Fragments of Rationality questions why composition studies has been less affected by postmodern theory than other humanities and social science disciplines.

Landmark Essays on Rhetoric of Science: Issues and Methods Randy Allen Harris, 2024-11-01 Landmark Essays in Rhetoric of Science: Issues and Methods compiles the essential readings of the vibrant field of rhetoric of science, tracing the growth and core concerns of the field since its development in the 1970s. A companion to Randy Allen Harris's foundational Landmark Essays in Rhetoric of Science: Case Studies, this volume includes essays by such luminaries as Carolyn R. Miller, Jeanne Fahnestock and Alan G. Gross, along with an early prophetic article by Charles Sanders Pierce. Harris's detailed introduction puts the field into its social and intellectual context and frames the important contributions of each essay which range from reimagining classical concepts like rhetorical figures and topical invention to Modal Materialism and the Neomodern hybridization of Actor Network Theory with Genre Studies Race revolution and Daoism come up along the way and the empirical recalcitrance of the moon This collection serves as a textbook for graduate and advanced undergraduate courses in science studies and is an invaluable resource for researchers concerned with science not as a special autonomous sacrosanct enterprise but as a set of value saturated profoundly influential rhetorical practices
