Halstead,Steven C. Deller,2015-04-24 In Social Capital at the Community Level John Halstead and Steven Deller examine social capital formation beyond the individual level through a variety of disciplines planning economics regional development sociology as well as non traditional approaches like engineering and built environmental features The notion of social capital in community and economic development has become a focus of intense interest for policy makers practitioners and academics The notion is that communities with higher levels of social capital networks trust and norms will prosper both economically and socially In a practical sense how do communities use the notion of social capital to build policies and strategies to move their community forward Are all forms of social capital the same and do all have a positive influence on the community To help gain insights into these fundamental questions Social Capital at the Community Level takes a holistic interdisciplinary or systems approach to thinking about the community While those who study social capital will acknowledge the need for an interdisciplinary approach most stay within their disciplinary silos One could say there is strong bonding social capital within disciplines but little bridging social capital across disciplines The contributors to Social Capital at the Community Level have made an attempt to build that bridging social capital While disciplinary biases and research approaches are evident there is significant overlap about how people with different disciplinary perspectives think about social capital and how it can be applied at the community level This can be from

The Social Capital of Entrepreneurial Newcomers Robert Lee, 2017-03-30 Lee takes the oft cited belief that entrepreneurial endeavour lives and dies by the quality of the networks set in play and subjects it to a rigorous and sustained analysis In this he not only provides the reader with an authoritative theoretical and empirical foray into how entrepreneurs can create and sustain different forms of social capital he does so with a strong sense of how power frames and taints its acquisition and use Lee's book is a valuable contribution to our understanding of how in entrepreneurial activity as in many walks of life it is those with already established status who set the agenda by which opportunity and its pursuit is constituted

Robin Holt Professor of Entrepreneurship Politics and Society Copenhagen Business School Denmark Robert Lee drives forward the agenda of socially situated cognition research moving beyond a static model of entrepreneurial cognition and offering instead a dynamic socially embedded communication based perspective He breaks from the traditional focus on either the individual entrepreneurial agent or the social and institutional context of entrepreneurship and makes a serious and skilful effort to provide an integrative understanding of the entrepreneur as placed in a complex relational and ambiguous context Recognising that entrepreneurship is both cognitive and relational he plays with the idea of power within legitimacy creation and through this illustrates the ultimately distributed nature of entrepreneurial processes This book adds to the growing domain of socially situated entrepreneurial cognition research and will appeal to those interested in understanding the connection between cognition communication and legitimacy in the context of entrepreneurship

Jean Clarke Professor of Entrepreneurship and Organization Leeds University Business School University of Leeds UK In a very welcome contribution to the literature Robert Lee explores the social capital mobilised by entrepreneurs and develops a communicative action approach that yields important insights into how would be entrepreneurs achieve legitimacy through navigating the complex web of power and status relations in which they are enmeshed This book will appeal not only to those interested in entrepreneurship but also be a valuable reference source for those interested in the workings of social capital

Michael Bresnen Professor of Organisation Studies Alliance Manchester Business School University of Manchester UK This book presents a novel and intellectually stimulating account of the understudied links between entrepreneurial newcomers bridging ties and their networked cognition With a paucity of research addressing cognitively specific features of networked language and conduct The Social Capital of Entrepreneurial Newcomers explores how entrepreneurial newcomers attune their cognition when interacting with high status and powerful vertical bridges Largely reflecting communication accommodation perspectives the author theoretically and empirically examines entrepreneurial newcomers cognitive convergence and divergence when bridging Social Capital Nan Lin,2002-05-20 1 Theories of Capital The Historical Foundation 3 2 Social Capital Capital Captured through Social Relations 19 3 Resources Hierarchy Networks and Homophily The Structural Foundation 29 4 Resources Motivations and Interactions The Action Foundation 41 5 The Theory and Theoretical Propositions 55 6 Social Capital and Status Attainment A Research Tradition 78 7 Inequality in Social Capital A Research Agenda 99 8 Social Capital and the Emergence of Social Structure A Theory of Rational Choice 127 9 Reputation and Social Capital The Rational Basis for Social Exchange 143 10 Social Capital in Hierarchical Structures 165 11 Institutions Networks and Capital Building Societal Transformations 184 12 Cybernetworks and the Global Village The Rise of Social Capital 210 13 The Future of the Theory 243 References 251 Index 267

Brown,2020-06-04 This book examines the youth sport parent experience through the lens of social capital a cornerstone social science concept of the past 30 years Social capital reflects the value of one s social networks and the actual and potential benefits and costs of relationships Bringing together a team of kids for a season also brings together their families who all must negotiate this new social world Within this world relationships are bound to form and these are the foundation upon which this project rests Youth sport scholars have traditionally been interested in questions such as how many kids play sports what sports they play how and why do they start playing and stop playing and the costs and benefit of participation However aside from sensational examples of youth sport parents behaving badly scholars know far less about the parental experience This time is meaningful for parents because parents often spend as much or even more time at the fields than their children It is thus worth examining what they might get out of this investment Utilizing two years of fieldwork and over 30 interviews with parents and board members of a youth baseball league in the southwestern United States this book provides an inside look at the
