Calibration of the HI STAR Sensors Stephan D. Price, Russell G. Walker, 1978 Problems exist in calibrating a cryogenically cooled infrared sensor system in the laboratory Although there are limited laboratory facilities which attempt to simulate the actual operational environment the sensor tester interface has created difficulties for calibrating LWIR sensors in general The procedures used to calibrate the AFGL infrared celestial survey experiments are described in detail It was found that stars are reliable calibration sources which offer several advantages over laboratory references The long term stability of the sensor systems as well as linearity of the system are discussed Author Lulu's Adventure with the Hi Adriana

Lagos,2013-10-15 This thesis addresses two of the central processes which underpin the formation of galaxies the formation of stars and the injection of energy into the interstellar medium from supernovae called feedback In her work Claudia Lagos has completely overhauled the treatment of these processes in simulations of galaxy formation Her thesis makes two major breakthroughs and represents the first major steps forward in these areas in more than a decade Her work has enabled for the first time predictions to be made which can be compared against new observations which probe the neutral gas content of galaxies opening up a completely novel way to constrain the models The treatment of feedback from supernovae and how this removes material from the interstellar medium is also likely to have a lasting impact on the field Claudia Lagos Ph D thesis was nominated by the Institute for Computational Cosmology at Durham University as an outstanding Ph D thesis 2012
