Epidemiology of Cancer of the Digestive Tract Pelayo Correa, W. Haenszel, 2012-12-06 The digestive organs are the most frequent site of cancer in the world accounting for approximately 30% of all malignant tumors This prominent position has been present for many decades in spite of marked shifts in the frequency of cancer of specific organs The most remarkable shift has been the decrease in gastric cancer rates occurring concomitantly with an increase in colon cancer rates in most western industrialized societies Important exceptions to this rule as well as other epidemiologic evidence indicate that the opposite trends for gastric and colon cancers are not inevitable consequences of each other Although genetically determined precancerous syndromes are well recognized it is generally agreed that environmental factors play an overriding role in digestive cancer causation The most obvious environmental factors seem to be the result of what we eat drink or smoke Although the nutritional component of the diet is of unquestionable importance the nonnutrient elements in our diet have also proven to be influential causative factors Several studies have focused on the microenvironment at the level of the mucosa or the digestive organs as a micro cosmos where forces promoting and inhibiting carcinogenesis are operating for a prolonged period of time Their interaction eventually determines the presence or absence of a malignant tumor Our understanding of such modulating forces hopefully will someday allow us to modify the microenvironment in a favorable way and attain the goal of cancer prevention

Cancer Epidemiology and Prevention David Schottenfeld, Joseph F. Fraumeni Jr., 2006-08-24 This much anticipated Third Edition provides a comprehensive presentation of the global burden and patterns of cancer occurrence along with new developments in our understanding of cancer causation and prevention Special attention is given to epidemiologic approaches that incorporate molecular biomarkers based on genomic and other emerging technologies providing new insights into the role of genetic predisposition and gene environment interactions in cancer induction In addition new chapters are included on social class disparities in cancer incidence and mortality the role of obesity and physical inactivity in cancer etiology the potential effects of electromagnetic fields and radiofrequency radiation and the principles of cancer chemoprevention The textbook is organized into five sections Basic Concepts The Magnitude of Cancer The Causes of Cancer Cancer by Tissue of Origin Cancer Prevention and Control In this new edition Drs David Schottenfeld and Joseph F Fraumeni Jr have enlisted three distinguished Associate Editors Drs Jonathan Samet of Johns Hopkins University Graham Colditz of Harvard University and Alice Whittemore of Stanford University

The Prevention of Cancer Richard Doll, 2017-07-05 Epidemiological studies show that cancer incidence is far more dependent on the conditions of life than previously supposed Classically cancers occurred with heavy exposure to a specific occupational hazard or were associated with habits In some instances research shows the incidence of cancer falls when the method of work or the associated habit is changed In short variation in incidence is now known to be the rule rather than the exception in cancer No cancer that occurs with even moderate frequency occurs everywhere and always to the same extent Sometimes it is even epidemic similar in scale to an epidemic of infectious disease but modified by the fact that the induction period may be as much as thirty years Prevention of cancer is now coming to be regarded as a practicable alternative to its cure We remain almost totally ignorant of how cancer is produced at the cellular level and until we know this our methods of prevention are liable to be cumbersome and inefficient Ethical considerations and the time scale of the disease make it impossible to obtain experimental evidence in man and what action to take has been determined from observing nature s experiments and by analogy from experiments in animals The evidence from epidemiological studies is of particular interest Such studies suggest relationships that would never be thought of in the ordinary course of laboratory work and results that are directly relevant to the problems of human disease The large numbers at risk and the intensity of the medical care to which people with cancer are subjected make it possible to recognize relatively small improvements Such practical decisions based on information thus obtained have largely eliminated the risk of cancer due to occupational hazards in several industries

Textbook of Cancer Epidemiology Hans-Olov Adami,David J. Hunter,Pagona Lagiou,Lorelei Mucci,2018-01-09 Comprehensive and comprehensible but also encouraging informed by the hope and belief that informed its creation Cancer Amid sweeping advances in the science and treatment of cancer the TEXTBOOK OF CANCER EPIDEMIOLOGY offers students and professionals a definitive systematic resource for understanding the factors affecting all types of human cancer This fully updated new edition offers an overview of epidemiology s key concepts and methods as they relate to cancer including the emerging potential of biomarkers as well as site specific chapters on individual cancers natural history pathology descriptive epidemiology and etiology Taken together these chapters forge connections between established science and the ongoing evolution of this dynamic field Crisply and concisely written by an assembly of internationally recognized researchers the TEXTBOOK OF CANCER EPIDEMIOLOGY offers a superlative introduction to the subject s consensus and controversies for those embarking on their careers and a ready reference for seasoned professionals

Global Epidemiology of Cancer Jahangir Moini,Nicholas G. Avgeropoulos,Craig Badolato,2022-03-28 GLOBAL EPIDEMIOLOGY OF CANCER Cancer is the second highest cause of death in the United States and a leading cause of death globally Our goals are to discuss the global epidemiology of various cancers with detailed information on their prevalence incidence and clinical considerations Epidemiology is the key to understanding the mortality and morbidity of cancer and how we can prevent diagnose and treat the disease Prevention of cancer is essential for saving lives Prevalence and incidence of cancer are key factors that each government and population must be aware of Advances in the study of cancer occur on a regular basis and this book provides the latest insights about relationships between the disease and stem cells tumorigenesis molecular interactions pathways channels and immunity Global Epidemiology of Cancer Diagnosis and Treatment meets the needs of readers by providing current information about epidemiology including molecular epidemiology diagnosis and treatment Providing logical step by step information on various cancers this book consolidates all of the most up to date information and data from verified studies on all different types of cancers in the United States and throughout the world Chapters are presented so that each includes an overview clinical manifestations epidemiology pathophysiology etiology and risk factors diagnosis treatment prevention and prognosis Global Epidemiology of Cancer Diagnosis and Treatment will be invaluable to graduate and postgraduate students including medical students nurses physician assistants residents in oncology public health students and allied health students

Textbook of Cancer Epidemiology Hans-Olov Adami,David Hunter,Dimitrios Trichopoulos,2008-02-27 This superb text gives a concise systematic account of what is currently known about the epidemiology and primary prevention for most forms of human cancer Part 1 provides an introduction to basic concepts in epidemiology a description of the global burden of cancer definitions and characterizations of the various measures used and approaches used to reveal genetic determinants of cancer risk and integrate biologic markers in the epidemiologic research process Part 2 contains chapters of uniform structure on over 20 types of cancer providing clinical and pathological outlines descriptive epidemiology and a comprehensive account of risk factors and their etiological importance Specific sections address somatic and germ cell mutations that play a role in the occurrence of particular forms of cancer

Breast Cancer Epidemiology Christopher Li, 2009-11-11 Breast cancer remains a disease of considerable public health importance worldwide with over 800 000 new cases diagnosed globally each year Considerable energy is currently being spent by researchers to further our understanding of this complex disease however keeping up with all of the new data is a real challenge given the sheer volume of information that becomes available on a daily basis The purpose of this book would be to provide a comprehensive review of breast cancer epidemiology covering the topics of disease burden etiology risk factors prevention early detection screening treatment and outcomes The book would be a single comprehensive source of the most recent information on breast cancer epidemiology and it would serve as a valuable resource for breast cancer researchers across disciplines regardless of what stage of their career they are in To the knowledge of the editor no such resource is currently available

Current problems in the epidemiology of cancer E. Grundmann, H. Tulinus, 1972 Breast and Gynecologic Cancer Epidemiology Jennifer L. Kelsey, Nancy G. Hildreth, 2019-10-10 Published in 1983 It is the authors intent to provide an overview of the state of knowledge of the epidemiology of cancers of the breast corpus uteri ovary cervix uteri vulva and vagina as of the end of 1981

Cancer Epidemiology Amr Soliman, David Schottenfeld, Paolo Boffetta, 2013-06-04 According to the World Health Organization s 2008 GLOBOCAN report 64% of global cancer deaths and 56% of cancer cases were registered in countries in Africa Asia or Latin America So while cancer is unquestionably a global burden its reach in the developing world points to the need for specialized study on cancer in these countries Cancer Epidemiology Low and Middle Income Countries and Special Populations reviews the current status of cancer epidemiologic research and training rationale requisite infrastructure methodologic principles and illustrative examples in low and middle income countries in order to facilitate future advances by trained health professionals The result is a valuable resource for both program leaders and graduate and post graduate students pursuing careers in international cancer epidemiologic research

Cancer Epidemiology Isabel dos Santos Silva, International Agency for Research on Cancer, 1999 A basic textbook addressed to medical and public health students clinicians health professionals and all others seeking to understand the principles and methods used in cancer epidemiology Written by a prominent epidemiologist and experienced teacher at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine the text aims to help readers become competent in the use of basic epidemiological tools and capable of exercising critical judgment when assessing results reported by others Throughout the text a lively writing style and numerous illustrative examples often using real research data facilitate an easy understanding of basic concepts and methods Information ranges from an entertaining account of the origins of epidemiology through advice on how to overcome some of the limitations of survival analysis to a checklist of questions to ask when considering sources of bias Although statistical concepts and formulae are presented the emphasis is consistently on the interpretation of the data rather than on the actual calculations The text has 18 chapters The first six introduce the basic principles of epidemiology and statistics Chapters 7-13 deal in more depth with each of the study designs and interpretation of their findings Two chapters concerned with the problems of confounding and study size cover more complex statistical concepts and are included for advanced study A chapter on methodological issues in cancer prevention gives examples of epidemiology's contribution to primary prevention screening and other activities for early detection and tertiary prevention The concluding chapters review the role of cancer registries and discuss practical considerations that should be taken into account in the design planning and conduct of any type of epidemiological research
