The Narratives of Konon Malcolm Kenneth Brown,2002 Konon's collection of fifty mythical Narratives Diegeseis which he dedicated to King Archelaos Philopatris of Cappadocia 36 B C A D 17 is one of the most interesting mythographical works not least because of the great variety of the material It has also been one of the most neglected in part because the work has not survived in its original form but in the summary of Photios and also in part because it is the sole extant mythographic collection that was not organized around a particular theme such as the better known works of Parthenios and Antoninus Liberalis Each narrative is set in a specific locality Although several mythical categories are represented foundation legends ktiseis and cult and local aetiologies predominate Konon records versions of myths that depart from the standard tellings as well as myths otherwise unattested This edition the first published commentary on Konon in over two centuries provides a text and translation of and commentary on each of the fifty tales and an overview of mythography and of the myth types favored by Konon London and the Culture of Homosexuality, 1885-1914 Matt Cook,2003 London and the Culture of Homosexuality explores the relationship between London and male homosexuality from the criminalisation of all acts of gross indecency between men in 1885 to the outbreak of the First World War in 1914 years marked by an intensification in concern about male male relationships and also by the emergence of an embryonic homosexual rights movement Taking his cue from literary and lesbian and gay scholars urban historians and cultural geographers Matt Cook

The Elegiac Passion Ruth Rothaus Caston, 2012-08-01 The passions were a topic of widespread interest in antiquity as has been shown by the recent interest and research in the emotions in Greek and Roman literature Until now however there has been very little focus on love elegy or its relation to contemporary philosophical positions Yet Roman love elegy depends crucially upon the passions without love anger jealousy pity and fear elegy could not exist at all The Elegiac Passion provides the first investigation of the ancient representation of jealousy in its Roman context as well as its significance for Roman love elegy itself The poems of Propertius Tibullus and Ovid are built upon the presumed existence of a love triangle involving poet mistress and rival the very structure of elegy thus creates an ideal scenario for the arousal of jealousy This study begins by examining the differences between the elegiac treatment of love and that of philosophy whether Stoic or Epicurean Ruth Caston uses the main chapters to address the depiction of jealousy in the love relationship and explores in detail the role of the senses the role of readers both those internal and external to the poems and the use of violence as a response to jealousy Elegy provides a multi faceted perspective on jealousy that gives us details and nuances of the experience of jealousy not found elsewhere in ancient literature She argues that jealousy turns centrally on the question of fides The fear of broken obligations and the consequent lack of trust are relevant not only to the love affair that forms the subject of these poems but to many other relationships represented in elegy as well Overall she demonstrates that jealousy is not merely the subject matter of elegy it creates and structures elegy's various generic features Jealousy thus provides a much more satisfying explanation for the specific character of Roman elegy than the various theories about its origins that have typically been put forward

Passion, Humiliation, Revenge Lapidus, 1955-01-01 This book reveals the phenomenon in Russian prose in which a male protagonist finds himself perpetuating a cycle of passion humiliation and revenge within his relationships with women By examining the mental and emotional state of the male protagonist who finds himself in a sexual situation Rina Lapidus explores how his passion for a woman leads the man into an encounter that causes him humiliation and ends up eliciting a powerful desire on his part to punish the woman who initially arouses his erotic feeling The male protagonist directs his fury at the woman seeking vengeance because of the shame he has suffered Lapidus shows how the man sees himself as a highly spiritual being and finds it difficult to come to terms with his sexual nature The author argues that this denial of desire leads the man to take out his frustration with himself on the woman projecting all of his faults and guilt onto her When the woman brings the male protagonist low his thirst for revenge becomes a powerful driving force in his life that eventually brings about his downfall This book will be of interest to those studying in the areas of Russian literature psychology and gender studies

Spectrality in Modernist Fiction Stephen Ross, 2023-06-14 Spectrality in Modernist Fiction argues that key modernist writers chiefly Conrad Forster Butts and Bowen use spectral rhetoric to tackle problems of sex and sexuality revolution imperialism capitalism and desire all through complicated ethical engagements These engagements invariably come packaged in and are shaped by the language of spectrality In its capacity to articulate a particular sort of relationship between the past the present and the future the spectral concerns the basic question of how to proceed how to live with maybe even address ethical indeterminacy Whether their spectral rhetoric traces the logics of capitalist possession Conrad queer friendship and paganized Christianity Forster regressive politics haunted by historical traumas Butts or the devious passages of perverse desire Bowen these writers locate something like hope in their ghosts The ethical and political impasses they chart through their spectral rhetoric are not final but temporary and the drive to overcome them constitutes a tensile optimism
