

Criticism: “Virtue Ethics”

- Criticized today for going too far in deriving “laws of the universe from simple observation and over-stretched reason”
- Such thinking without sufficient facts is ineffective (scientific method) and more experimentation is needed to support this view.

The Ethics Of Criticism:

The Ethics of Criticism Tobin Siebers, 2018-03-15 Tobin Siebers asserts that literary criticism is essentially a form of ethics. The Ethics of Criticism investigates the moral character of contemporary literary theory, assessing a wide range of theoretical approaches in terms of both the ethical presuppositions underlying the critical claims and the attitudes fostered by the approaches. Building on analyses of the moral legacies of Plato, Kant, Nietzsche, and Freud, Siebers identifies the various fronts on which the concerns of critical theory impinge on those of ethics.

Truth and the Ethics of Criticism Christopher Norris, 1994 This text is a reply to some of the more doctrinaire beliefs that pass for radical thinking. For the most part, Norris argues these ideas are based on a false understanding of crucial episodes in their own pre-history.

The Ethics of Criticism Robert Masters Theobald, 1904

Ethical Criticism Robert Eaglestone, 1997 What is the relationship between literary criticism and ethics? This book attempts to answer that question, setting out the issues in context by analyzing the historical development of the ethics of criticism against what is known as theory.

Cold War Criticism and the Politics of Skepticism Tobin Siebers, 1993-04-29 In Cold War Criticism and the Politics of Skepticism, Tobin Siebers claims that modern criticism is a Cold War criticism. Postwar literary theory has absorbed the skepticism, suspicion, and paranoia of the Cold War mentality, and it plays them out in debates about the divided self, linguistic indeterminacy, the metaphysics of presence, multiculturalism, canon formation, power, cultural literacy, and the politics of literature. The major critical movements of the postwar age, Siebers argues, belong to three dominant phases of the Cold War era: the age of charismatic leadership, characterized by Churchill, FDR, Stalin, and Hitler; the age of preoccupation with intention, affect, and impersonality, found in the New Criticism; and the age of propaganda, which motivates the fascination with the guiles of language, undecidability, and deconstruction. The age of superpowers provides the dominant metaphor in the new historicism's analysis of the technology of power. All three ages of criticism reflect the skepticism of the Cold War mentality, and this skepticism, Siebers posits, has impaired the ability of literary theorists to talk about the politics of criticism in an effective way. A trenchant analysis of postwar theory, Siebers's work presents a new view of the politics of criticism and a surprising vision of what theory must do if it is to enter the post-Cold War era successfully.

The Ethics of Criticism and Other Essays Norbert Hardy Wallis, 1924

The Ascetic Imperative in Culture and Criticism Geoffrey Galt Harpham, 2011-01-15 In this bold interdisciplinary work, Geoffrey Galt Harpham argues that asceticism has played a major role in shaping Western ideas of the body, writing, ethics, and aesthetics. He suggests that we consider the ascetic as the cultural element in culture and presents a close analysis of works by Athanasius, Augustine, Matthias Grnewald, Nietzsche, Foucault, and other thinkers as proof of the extent of asceticism's resources. Harpham demonstrates the usefulness of his findings by deriving from asceticism a discourse of resistance, a code of interpretation ultimately more generous and humane than those currently available to us.
