design and planning Design and Heritage Grace Lees-Maffei, Rebecca Houze, 2021-12-29 Design and Heritage provides the first extended study of heritage from the point of view of design history Exploring the material objects and spaces that contribute to our experience of heritage the volume also examines the processes and practices that shape them Bringing together 18 case studies written by authors from the United States the United Kingdom Canada Brazil Norway India South Africa Australia and New Zealand the book questions how design functions to produce heritage Including provocative case studies of objects that reinterpret visual symbols of cultural identity and buildings and monuments that evoke feelings of national pride and historical memory as well as landscapes embedded with trauma contributors consider how we can work to develop adequate shared conceptual models of heritage and apply them to design and its histories Exploring the distinction between tangible and intangible heritages the chapters consider what these categories mean for design history and heritage Finally the book questions whether it might be possible to promote a truly equitable understanding of heritage that illuminates the social cultural and economic roles of design Design and Heritage demonstrates that design historical methods of inquiry contribute significantly to critical heritage studies Academics researchers and students engaged in the study of heritage design history material culture folklore art history architectural history and social and cultural history will find much to interest them within the pages of the book Remaking the American Dream Vinit Mukhija, 2022-12-20 The redefinition of the single family house the urban landscape and the American Dream Sitting squarely at the center of the American Dream the detached single family home has long been the basic building block of most US cities In Remaking the American Dream Vinit Mukhija considers how this is changing in both the American psyche and the urban landscape In defiance of long held norms and standards single family housing is slowly but significantly transforming through incremental additions of second and third units Drawing on empirical evidence of informal and formal changes Remaking the American Dream documents homeowners quiet unpermitted modifications conversions and workarounds as well as gradual institutional alterations to once rigid local land use regulations Mukhija's primary case study is Los Angeles and the role played by the State of California findings he contrasts with the experience of other cities including Santa Cruz Seattle Portland Minneapolis and Vancouver In each instance he shows how and asks why homeowners are adapting their homes and governments are changing the rules that regulate single family housing to allow for accessory dwelling units ADUs or second units Key to Mukhija's research is the question of why the idea of single family living is changing and what this means for the future of US cities The answer this book suggests heralds nothing less than a redefinition of American urbanism and the American Dream The Tennessee Planner Tennessee State Planning Commission, 1966 The Collaborating Planner? Ben Clifford, Mark Tewdwr-Jones, 2014-07-09 Since the turn of the 21st century there has been a greater pace of reform to planning in Britain than at any other time As a public sector activity planning has also been impacted heavily by the wider changes in the way we are governed Yet whilst such reform has been extensively commented upon within academia few have empirically explored how these changes are manifesting themselves in planning practice This new book aims to understand how both specific planning and broader public sector reforms have been experienced and understood by chartered town planners working in local authorities across Great Britain After setting out the reform context successive chapters then map responses across the profession to the implementation of spatial planning to targets to public participation and to the idea of a customer focused planning and to attempts to change the culture of the planning Each chapter outlines the reaction by the profession to reforms promoted by successive central and devolved governments over the last decade before considering the broader issues of what this tells us about how modernisation is rolled out by frontline public servants This accessible book fills a gap in the market and makes ideal reading for students and researchers interested in the UK planning system

The #Planninglife: A Magazine for Planners Jazzmyn Michaels, The Planners' Journal, 1942 Reviving Critical Planning Theory Tore Sager, 2012 Discussing some of the most vexing criticism of communicative planning theory CPT this book goes on to suggest how theorists and planners can respond to it Looking at issues of power politics and ethics in relation to planning this book is for both critics and advocates of CPT with lessons for all With severe criticisms being raised against CPT the need has arisen to systematically think through what responsibilities planning theorists might have for the end uses of their theoretical work Offering inventive proposals for amending the shortcomings of this widely adhered planning method this book reflects on what communicative planning theorists and practitioners can and should do differently

Against Urbanism Franco La Cecla, 2020-02-15 After demolishing the myth of the rock star architect with his book Against Architecture Franco La Cecla now explores the decisive challenges that cities are going to have to confront in the near future Urban planning and development has become increasingly inadequate in response to the daily realities of life in our cities Human economic ethnic and environmental factors are systematically overlooked in city planning and housing development and anachronistic sterile and formalistic architecture almost invariably prevails Meanwhile our cities grow out of internal impulses not only in slums and favelas but through the pressing needs for public spaces which have sprung forth in great events and movements such as Istanbul's Gezi Park and Occupy Wall Street Never more than today has democracy played itself out in public spaces sidewalks and streets Urban planners and developers however are still prisoners of an obsolete vision of passivity which betrays actual city needs and demands A new urban science is required which can first of all guarantee a civil dignified life for all urban development which ensures the right to a humane mode of daily living which has been and still is completely ignored Accustomed as we are to thinking that changes take place online or on a global scale we sense that they are not made of human bodies in urban spaces and that the mere presence in the square of people claiming their right to the city is a political fact explosive in nature Franco La Cecla from Against Urbanism
