The Experience Of Dying A Spectrum:

Beyond the Brain Stanislav Grof, 1985-01-01 Beyond the Brain seriously challenges the existing neurophysiological models of the brain After three decades of extensive research on those non ordinary states of consciousness induced by psychedelic drugs and by other means Grof concludes that our present scientific world view is as inadequate as many of its historical predecessors In this pioneering work he proposes a new model of the human psyche that takes account of his findings Grof includes in his model the recollective level or the reliving of emotionally relevant memories a level at which the Freudian framework can be useful Beyond that is perinatal level in which the human unconscious may be activated to a reliving of biological birth and confrontation with death How birth experience influences an individual s later development is a central focus of the book The most serious challenge to contemporary psycho analytic theory comes from a delineation of the transpersonal level or the expansion of consciousness beyond the boundaries of time and space Grof makes a bold argument that understanding of the perinatal and transpersonal levels changes much of how we view both mental illness and mental health His reinterpretation of some of the most agonizing aspects of human behavior proves thought provoking for both laypersons and professional therapists

Dying: A Social Perspective on the End of Life Alex Broom, 2016-03-03 An inevitable and universal experience dying is experienced by individuals in different ways often related to the character of our relationships family structures gender identities cultural backgrounds and economic means Drawing on extensive qualitative fieldwork with patients carers and health professionals in Australia and the United Kingdom Dying A Social Perspective on the End of Life provides a critical examination of the different spheres of dying in social and cultural context Exploring complex issues such as the politics of assisted dying negotiating medical futility gender and dying the desire for redemption the moralities of the good fight and the lived experience of bodily disintegration this book links novel theoretical ideas within sociology to cutting edge empirical data collected in palliative and end of life care contexts A theoretically engaged understanding of the social mediation of the end of life Dying A Social Perspective on the End of Life also sheds light on the manner in which the end of life can be shaped by major economic cultural and socio cultural shifts including neo liberalism individualisation medicalisation professionalisation and detraditionalisation As such it will appeal to social science health and medical researchers interested in the end of life as well as those working in palliative and end of life care settings

H. Rick Jarow, 2012-02-01 Tales for the Dying explores the centrality of death and dying in the narrative of the Bhagavata Purana India's great text of devotional theism canonized as an integral part of the Vaishnava bhakti tradition The text grapples with death through an imaginative meditation one that works through the presence and power of narrative The story of the Bhagavata Purana is spoken to a king who is about to die and it enables him to come to terms with his own passing The work does not isolate dying as an issue it treats it on many levels This book discusses how images of dying in the Bhagavata Purana relate to issues of language and love in the religious imagination of India Drawing on insights from studies in myth literary semiotics and depth psychology as well as from Indian commentarial and aesthetic traditions the author examines the power of myth and narrative storytelling or hari katha and shows how a detailed awareness of the Puranic imagination may lead to a revisioning of some long held presuppositions around Indian religious attitudes toward dying By casting Vaishnava bhakti traditions and Puranic narrative in a fresh light the mythic imagination of the Puranas takes its place on the stage of contemporary discourse on comparative mythology and literature
