the earth's crust provide a considerable variety of rock types is evident to any thoughtful observer. To the geologist falls the task of characterizing and explaining this variety but many other kinds of specialists who are involved in the commercial use of stone also have an essential stake in the matter. From quarryman to mason from architect to structural engineer and certainly from purchaser to future observer there is compelling interest in the nature appearance and durability of one stone as compared with another or of stone as compared with some other material. Small wonder then that much has been written on the subject and that numerous aspects of commercial stone and its properties have appealed to a host of investigators. Research in this area also has been an official concern of many organizations which in the United States include the American Society for Testing and Materials the National Bureau of Standards the U S Bureau of Mines the U S Geological Survey and several state agencies.
