Socializing Militants: How States End Asymmetric Conflict with Non-State Militants Jeremiah Rozman, 2023-05-09 The twentieth and twenty first centuries have seen states engaged in long term conflicts with asymmetrically weaker non state actors NSA States aim to end these conflicts as quickly as possible by combining force and diplomacy to socialize these militants meaning give them the characteristics of states in order to make a credible bargain achievable The militant's characteristics determine the state's optimal strategy In times of conflict politicians and pundits often march out an oft cited phrase in support of negotiations if you want to make peace you don't talk to your friends You talk to your enemies This is only possible when the opponent is willing to make peace under acceptable terms and able to enforce abidance Some opponents have an ideologically driven fundamental purpose that precludes renouncing violence under terms that a state could accept Others have reasonable demands and are structured in a way that allows productive negotiations In other cases the non state militant is not yet the type that can be bargained with but can be socialized into this type through a state s correct application of force and diplomacy I call this socialization logic I argue that optimally states tailor their strategy to socialize with their opponent to make it possible to successfully negotiate peace In practice the state s strategy is often distorted by its internal and external constraints Socialization logic provides a novel typology of non state militants based on how well interstate conflict bargaining concepts can be applied to them It looks beyond tactics to systematize a framework for understanding how leaders tailor strategy towards non state opponents based on their characteristics Socialization logic examines the NSA type as endogenous to the strategy that the state employs and provides a framework for leaders to design a strategy to end the conflict Finally socialization logic synthesizes critical NSA attributes ideology leadership structure and governance function and the state s strategy distorted by constraints into in an interactive model Through 41 interviews primary and secondary source data I analyze the United States Russia s and Israel s asymmetric conflicts with militants and demonstrate that socialization logic most comprehensively explains their strategies throughout those conflicts

Adopting an Interpretative phenomenological analysis IPA method of analysis Vandamme builds on role theory to develop a theory of socialization as role compatibility to explain the dynamics of Pakistan's dysfunctional position and its status seeking process as a fully functioning member of the international system. Specifically, she focuses on how Pakistani civilian and military leaders define their country's positioning towards India, the United States, and China. In doing so, she traces the link between domestic role contestation at the country's inception and the resulting domination of the military's conception of their country's state identity, how it projects itself externally, and how it is received by others. Departing from strictly structural or agent-oriented explanations, Vandamme expertly demonstrates Pakistan's perceived role compatibility with significant others and underlines the causality between state identity, foreign policy behavior, and socialization. Role Compatibility as Socialization will be of interest to graduate students and researchers who work on and with role theory and socialization theory and for those with a research interest on South Asia.
