Important transformations have taken place in the organization, management and purpose of prisons in the last few decades, and in the social and philosophical orientations of prison managers. These transformations can be detected in the experience of the prisoner and the prison officer.²

The version of managerialism seen to emerge in criminal justice during the late 1980s and onwards was described by Feeley and Simon (1992) as ‘the new penology’: an emerging strategy of corrections having negative ideological effects on practitioners via new
