Speaking Out of Turn Charles Manning Hope Clark,Manning Clark,1997 This fascinating book brings together forty two selected speeches and lectures by Professor Manning Clark They range over fifty years from What of Germany delivered in 1940 to the last delivered in 1991 just before his death at the launch of Barry Humphries book The Life and Death of Sandy Stone and reveal recurring themes as well as developments in Clark s thinking In one sense they are all of a piece They reflect the values aspirations regrets and laughter of one passionate and intelligent man In another they change and develop during the course of that man s intellectual and emotional career In early manhood he analysed issues and problems ruthlessly in terms of his own values In middle life he portrayed men and women and expounded ideas from a historical perspective Towards his end the elegiac mood prevailed and he sought not always successfully to speak as a life affirmer and to regard all men and women and events with the eye of pity A History of Australia Volumes 1 and 2 Earliest Times 1838 deals with the pre white settlement era and the earliest years of European colonisation through to the establishment of an increasingly settled society and the expeditions of the great inland explorers

Feminism, the Left, and Postwar Literary Culture Kathlene McDonald,2012-07-02 This book traces the development of a Left feminist consciousness as women became more actively involved in the American Left during and immediately following World War II McDonald argues that women writers on the Left drew on the rhetoric of antifascism to critique the cultural and ideological aspects of women s oppression In Left journals during World War II women writers outlined the dangers of fascist control for women and argued that the fight against fascism must also be about ending women s oppression After World War II women writers continued to use this antifascist framework to call attention to the ways in which the emerging domestic ideology in the United States bore a frightening resemblance to the fascist repression of women in Nazi Germany This critique of American domestic ideology emphasized the ways in which black and working class women were particularly affected and extended to an examination of women's roles in personal and romantic relationships. Underlying this critique was the belief that representations of women in American culture were part of the problem. To counter these dominant cultural images, women writers on the Left depicted female activists in contemporary antifascist and anticolonial struggles or turned to the past for historical role models in the labor abolitionist and antisuffrage movements. This depiction of women as models of agency and liberation challenged some of the conventions about femininity in the postwar era. The book provides a historical overview of women writers who anticipated issues about women's oppression and the intersections of gender, race, and class that would become central tenants of feminist literary criticism and black feminist criticism in the 1970s and 1980s. It closely considers works by writers both well known and obscure including Lorraine Hansberry, Alice Childress, Martha Dodd, Sanora Babb, and Beth McHenry.

Spy, 1996-01. Smart. Funny. Fearless. It's pretty safe to say that Spy was the most influential magazine of the 1980s. It might have remade New York's cultural landscape; it definitely changed the whole tone of magazine journalism. It was cruel, brilliant, beautifully written, and perfectly designed and feared by all. There's no magazine I know of that's so continually referenced, held up as a benchmark, and whose demise is so lamented. Dave Eggers. It's a piece of garbage. Donald Trump.

Mediating Moms. Elizabeth Podnieks, 2012. Women's studies, cultural studies.
