verb inflection in German-speaking children Brandt-Kobele, Oda-Christina,2014-10-09 Previous studies on the acquisition of verb inflection in normally developing children have revealed an astonishing pattern children use correctly inflected verbs in their own speech but fail to make use of verb inflections when comprehending sentences uttered by others Thus a three year old might well be able to say something like The cat sleeps on the bed but fails to understand that the same sentence when uttered by another person refers to only one sleeping cat but not more than one The previous studies that have examined children s comprehension of verb inflections have employed a variant of a picture selection task in which the child was asked to explicitly indicate via pointing what semantic meaning she had inferred from the test sentence Recent research on other linguistic structures such as pronouns or focus particles has indicated that earlier comprehension abilities can be found when methods are used that do not require an explicit reaction like preferential looking tasks This dissertation aimed to examine whether children are truly not able to understand the connection the the verb form and the meaning of the sentence subject until the age of five years or whether earlier comprehension can be found when a different measure preferential looking is used Additionally children s processing of subject verb agreement violations was examined The three experiments of this thesis that examined children s comprehension of verb inflections revealed the following German speaking three to four year old children looked more to a picture showing one actor when hearing a sentence with a singular inflected verb but only when their eye gaze was tracked and they did not have to perform a picture selection task When they were asked to point to the matching picture they performed at chance level This pattern indicates asymmetries in children s language performance even within the receptive modality The fourth experiment examined sensitivity to subject verb agreement violations and did not reveal evidence for sensitivity toward agreement violations in three and four year old children but only found that children s looking patterns were influenced by the grammatical violations at the age of five The results from these experiments are discussed in relation to the existence of a production comprehension asymmetry in the use of verb inflections and children s underlying grammatical knowledge

Children's Early Text Construction Clotilde Pontecorvo,Margherita Orsolini,Barbara Burge,Lauren B. Resnick,2014-02-04 For decades research on children s literacy has been dominated by questions of how children learn to read Especially among Anglophone scholars cognitive and psycholinguistic research on reading has been the only approach to studying written language education Echoing this debates on methods of teaching children to read have long dominated the educational scene This book presents an alternative view In recent years writing has emerged as a central aspect of becoming literate Research in cognitive psychology has shown that writing is a highly complex activity involving a degree of planning unknown in everyday conversational uses of language At the same time developmental studies have revealed that when young children are asked to write they show a surprisingly sophisticated understanding of the representational constraints of alphabetic writing systems They show this understanding long before they can read conventional writing on their own The rich structure of meanings involved in the word text provided the glue that brought together a group of scholars from several disciplines in an international workshop held in Rome Reflecting the state of the field at the time the majority of the workshop participants were scholars working in languages other than English especially the romance languages Their work mirrors a linguistic and psychological research tradition that Anglophone scholars knew little of until recently This volume provides English language readers with updated versions of the papers presented at the meeting The topics discussed at the workshop are represented in the chapters as follows the relationship between acquisition of language and familiarity with written texts the reciprocal permeability between spoken and written language the initial phases of text construction by children and the educational conditions that facilitate written language acquisition and writing practice

Multilingual Perspectives on Child Language Disorders Janet L. Patterson, Barbara L. Rodríguez, 2016-01-05 This book investigates language disorders in children who speak languages other than or in addition to English The chapters in the first section of the volume focus on language disorders associated with four different syndromes in multilingual populations and contexts This section discusses language disorders associated with autism spectrum disorders Down syndrome fetal alcohol syndrome and Williams syndrome The chapters in the second section of the book relate to language impairment in children who speak diverse languages although the issues they address are relevant across languages and cultural contexts The book also reviews assessment procedures and intervention approaches for diverse languages including Bengali Cantonese French Spanish and Turkish The volume aims to stimulate thoughtful clinical practice and further research in language disorders in multilingual populations

"Man schreibt, wie man spricht" Ingrid Gogolin, Language of the Land Katherine Schuster, David Witkosky, 2007-04-01 The idea for this volume arose out of a need for a treatment of the interplay between language and ethnonationalism within both formal and nonformal educational settings In no way intended to be exhaustive in scope the contents give the reader a critical overview of issues related to language cultural identity formation and ethnonationalism The chapters within this work deal with the effects of different language groups with differing amounts of power within society coming into contact with one another and provide insight into how language is both utilized by and affected by processes such as colonialism post colonialism acculturation and ethnonationalism Language is central to culture indeed houses cultural understandings and allows generational transfer of key aspects of a group's heritage

New Trends in Language Acquisition Within the Generative Perspective Pedro Guijarro-Fuentes, Cristina Suárez-Gómez, 2020-01-17 This book presents a comprehensive state of the art treatment of the acquisition of Indo and Non Indo European languages in various contexts such as L1 L2 L3 L_n bi multilingual heritage languages pathology as well as language impairment and sign language acquisition The book explores a broad mix of methodologies and issues in contemporary research The text presents original research from several different perspectives and provides a basis for dialogue between researchers working on diverse projects with the aim of furthering our understanding of how languages are acquired The book proposes and refines new theoretical constructs e g regarding the complexity of linguistic features as a relevant factor forming children s adults and bilingual individuals acquisition of morphological syntactic discursive pragmatic lexical and phonological structures It appeals to students researchers and professionals in the field The Children: how to Study Them Francis Warner,1887 The Child as Musician Gary E. McPherson,2015-09-24 The new edition of The Child as Musician A Handbook of Musical Development celebrates the richness and diversity of the many different ways in which children can engage in and interact with music It presents theory both cutting edge and classic in an accessible way for readers by surveying research concerned with the development and acquisition of musical skills The focus is on musical development from conception to late adolescences although the bulk of the coverage concentrates on the period when children are able to begin formal music instruction from around age 3 until the final year of formal schooling around age 18 There are many conceptions of how musical development might take place just as there are for other disciplines and areas of human potential Consequently the publication highlights the diversity in current literature dealing with how we think about and conceptualise children s musical development Each of the authors has searched for a better and more effective way to explain in their own words and according to their own perspective the remarkable ways in which children engage with music In the field of educational psychology there are a number of publications that survey the issues surrounding child and adolescent development Some of the more innovative present research and theories and their educational implications in a style that stresses the fundamental interplay among the biological environmental social and cultural influences at each stage of a child s development Until now no similar overview has existed for child and adolescent development in the field of music The Child as Musician addresses this imbalance and is essential for those in the fields of child development music education and music cognition Cracking the GED Test with 2 Practice Tests, 2020 Edition The Princeton Review,2019-08-20 Make sure you re studying with the most up to date prep materials Look for the newest edition of this title Princeton Review GED Test Prep 2021 ISBN 9780525569398 on sale June 2020 Publisher s Note Products purchased from third party sellers are not guaranteed by the publisher for quality or authenticity and may not include access to online tests or materials included with the original product
