It is obvious that, especially, contemporary, postmodern, and deconstructive theories of the subject have been directed towards the question of the subject's self-constitution. The subject is not a pre-given entity, but is constituted through language and discourse. This is the central theme of the postmodern and deconstructive theories. Counseling in the field of communication disorders is an essential dimension of professional practice but just what it entails is often a bit of a mystery. Counseling in Speech Language Pathology and Audiology: Reconstructing Personal Narratives Second Edition addresses this common concern of students and practitioners by illustrating how to integrate the concept of counseling into clinical practice. Replete with a variety of case studies, clinical guidelines, and actual transcripts of counseling interventions with clients and their families, as well as a practical toolbox of specific counseling techniques, this graduate level textbook offers a comprehensive, novel, and empirically informed approach to counseling applicable to a broad range of speech, language, swallowing, and hearing disorders. New to the Second Edition: 10 new chapters on the nature of change, critical thinking, culturally informed care, and preparing for the counseling relationship; A new case illustration and three new tools; A new Foreword by Sue Hale MCD; Reorganized for improved flow of information with earlier introduction of the central framework, followed by chapters to build foundational knowledge and skills. The central framework for counseling has been simplified and reconfigured for easier integration into clinical practice. Based on user feedback, the theory chapters from the first edition have been dropped to make room for the added knowledge and skill chapters, giving the book a more practical feel. Discussion topics have been added at the end of all chapters in Parts I, II, and III. New images and illustrations throughout. Updated to reflect current research with many new references added. A PluralPlus companion website containing brief video commentaries by the authors introducing and discussing the main points for each chapter and materials for instructors, including a test bank, customizable PowerPoint lecture slides, and suggestions for in-class activities.

Speech and Language Norman J. Lass,2014-06-28

Speech and Language: Volume 3: Advances in Basic Research and Practice is a compendium of papers that discusses theories, clinical issues, and pathology of language and speech. Some papers discuss theories of phonological development, the encoding/decoding system of language, and the application of phonological universals in speech pathology. Other papers deal with the role of the speech language clinician, a psychological framework for speech perception, and the formulation of a model for biomechanical analysis of velopharyngeal structure and function. Several papers analyze speech control mechanisms in skilled and non-skilled speakers, the rationale for the delayed auditory feedback (DAF) treatment program, and biofeedback in relation to speech pathology. One paper cites a study of Williams (1974) that shows strategies used in learning a new phonetic system depend upon whether the speaker is still within the critical period for language learning or already well beyond it. The paper notes that if adults can ignore their previously learned sound system and be childlike again in their freedom to experiment and be sensitive to their own results, then they can achieve supra segmental and segmental nuances of a new language The compendium can prove helpful for linguists ethnologists psychologists speech therapists researchers in linguistics or communications and general readers interested in speech or learning issues
