Perspectives on the Song of Songs / Perspektiven der Hoheliedauslegung Anselm C. Hagedorn, 2012-02-13 The collection of essays contains nineteen contributions that aim at locating the Song of Songs in its ancient context as well as addressing problems of interpretation and the reception of this biblical book in later literature In contrast to previous studies this work devotes considerable attention to parallels from the Greek world without neglecting the Ancient Near East or Egypt Several contributions deal with the use of the Song in Byzantine Medieval German Romantic and modern Greek Literature Due to the interdisciplinary nature of the collection new perspectives and avenues of approach are opened

Septuagint: Song of Songs Scriptural Research Institute, 2020-04-09 The Song of Songs appears to be love poetry exchanged between Solomon and one of his wives however is not clear who exactly the wife was The wife describes herself as black suggesting a Kushite woman She also refers to herself as a Shulammitess and makes clear she was not from Jerusalem The town of Shunamm was located near the Jezreel Valley north of Mount Gilboa in the tribal lands of Issachar at the time It was also listed as one of the towns conquered by the Egyptian Pharaoh Thutmose III circa 1450 BC and then again by Pharaoh Shoshenq I circa 925 BC meaning there was a significant town was there for over 500 years It was the hometown of King David's last concubine the 12 year old Abishag who Adonijah attempted to marry after David's death which suggests the author was Abishag the Shulamite. If this song was the work of Abishag, it means that it would date to the time of Solomon and imply she was one of Solomon's wives or concubines. The geography of the Song of Songs is curious as it seems focused on northern Israel and southern Lebanon, not Judea. Jerusalem is mentioned repeatedly but as part of the phrase "daughters of Jerusalem," which is a group the author clearly does not see herself as being a part of. This suggests that she was living in the north, possibly in the palace Solomon built in the mountains of Lebanon, and saw the daughters of Jerusalem as her rivals for his affection.
