Women Scientists in America Margaret W. Rossiter, 1998-09-29 Winner of the Pfizer Award for Outstanding Book in the History of Science Margaret Rossiter's widely hailed Women Scientists in America Struggles and Strategies to 1940 marked the beginning of a pioneering effort to interpret the history of American women scientists That effort continues in this provocative sequel that covers the crucial years of World War II and beyond Rossiter begins by showing how the acute labor shortage brought on by the war seemed to hold out new hope for women professionals especially in the sciences But the public posture of welcoming women into the scientific professions masked a deep seated opposition to change Rossiter proves that despite frustrating obstacles created by the patriarchal structure and values of universities government and industry women scientists made genuine contributions to their fields grew in professional stature and laid the foundation for the breakthroughs that followed 1972

Leadership in American Academic Geography Michael S. DeVivo, 2014-11-14 Leadership in American Academic Geography The Twentieth Century examines the practice of leadership in the most influential geography departments in the United States Throughout the twentieth century transformational leaders often emerged as inspirational department chairs shaping the content and nature of the discipline and establishing models of leadership often fueling the success of programs and sparking shifts in paradigms Yet on occasion departmental chairmanships fell to individuals marked by laissez faire attributes lapses in integrity or autocratic behaviors which at times led to disaster Effective leaders within key academic departments played imperative roles in the discipline's prosperity and in contrast mediocrity in leadership contributed to periods of austerity Michael S DeVivo aims to offer not only a historical perspective on the geographic discipline but also insight to leaders in geography today and in the future so that they might be able to avoid failure and instead develop strategies for success by recognizing effective leadership behaviors that foster high levels of achievement
