The Banana Philip Keep Reynolds,1927      Tropical Agriculture ,1928      Banana: Genomics and Transgenic Approaches for Genetic Improvement Sukhada Mohandas,Kundapura V. Ravishankar,2016-09-08 Bananas and plantains are among the most important food and cash crops in the world They are cultivated in more than 135 countries across the tropics and subtropics with an annual global production of ca 130 million metric tonnes Though bananas are one of the most important components of food security in many developing countries banana production is threatened by both abiotic and biotic stresses These include a wide range of diseases and pests such as bunchy top virus burrowing nematodes black Sigatoka or black leaf streak Fusarium wilt etc In recent years considerable progress has been made and several biotechnological and genomic tools have been employed to help understand and unravel the mysterious banana genome Molecular and genomic studies have helped to decipher the Musa genome and its evolution Genetic linkage map and whole genome sequencing of both Musa acuminata and Musa balbisiana progenitors of cultivated banana have completely changed the way of thinking and the approach on banana crop improvement Whole genome sequencing has helped to improve the selection of quantitative traits such as yield as well as the selection of optimal parents for developing required hybrids in breeding programs Gene isolation and the analysis of mutants have helped in the characterization of genes of agronomic value and the associated regulatory sequences With the advent of molecular markers and new statistical tools it is now possible to measure the diversity identify genes and useful alleles linked to important agronomic traits Further these alleles can be incorporated into cultivars through marker assisted selection or through transgenic approach Transgenic approaches are potential tools for direct transfer of these genes into popular cultivars which are generally not amenable for conventional breeding techniques in specific with crops such as bananas which are sterile triploid and heterozygous thereby making it difficult to reconstruct the recurrent genotypes in banana Transgenic techniques thus have helped overcome the difficulty of working with sterile triploid banana crop In the last five years enormous amount of new information and techniques have been generated for banana A comprehensive book entitled Banana Genomics and Transgenic Approaches for Genetic improvement on banana genomics latest transgenic technologies and tools available for improved crop development in banana will address all these requirements      The Banana Philip Keep Reynolds,1927      Latin America in Books ,1982      Nutritive and Therapeutic Values of the Banana United Fruit Company. This beautifully illustrated book reviews scientific and technological information about the world's major food plants and their culinary uses. An introductory chapter discusses nutritional and other fundamental scientific aspects of plant foods. The 100 main chapters deal with a particular species or group of species. All categories of food plants are covered including cereals, oilseeds, fruits, nuts, vegetables, legumes, herbs, spices, beverage plants, and sources of industrial food extracts. Information is provided on scientific and common names, appearance, history, economic and social importance, food uses including practical information on storage and preparation as well as notable curiosities. There are more than 3000 literature citations in the book and the text is complemented by over 250 exquisitely drawn illustrations. Given the current alarming rise in food costs and increasing risk of hunger in many regions, specialists in diverse fields will find this reference work to be especially useful. As well, those familiar with Dr. Small's books or those with an interest in gardening, cooking, and human health in relation to diet will want to own a copy of this book. Publisher's web site: Agriculture in Uganda: Crops Joseph K. Mukiibi, 2001. Crops offers a comprehensive survey of the various strategies for managing and developing increased and sustainable crop production. The study is organised into eight parts which are: plant genetics and plant genetic resources in Uganda; cereals, millets, sorghum and maize; oil crops; grain and legumes; roots and tubers; cassava, yams, sweet potatoes and solanum potatoes and plantains. The remainder of the study concentrates on the agricultural production of traditional cash crops: cotton, coffee, tea, cocoa and sugar, and touches upon new areas such as sericulture and mushroom cultivation.

Selected List of Publications on Tropical Agriculture Pan American Union, 1930 Bulletin of the Faculty of Science, 1954 Underexploited Tropical Plants with Promising Economic Value National Research Council, 2002-06. This is a report on plants that show promise for improving the quality of life in tropical areas. Because the countries in this zone contain most of the world's low income populations, this report is addressed to those government administrators, technical assistance personnel, and researchers in agriculture, nutrition, and related disciplines who are concerned with helping developing countries achieve a more efficient and balanced exploitation of their biological resources. The 36 plants described here were selected from among 400 nominated by plant scientists around the world. To keep the project to a manageable size, medicinal plants and timber species were excluded.
