Krason, 2013-07-05 The child protective system CPS shaped by federal law forty years ago and run on the state and county levels in the United States offered in utopian fashion the hope of preventing all possible child abuse or neglect In response legislators enacted a spate of vague laws that poorly defined such categories as abuse and neglect and granted the CPS sweeping powers to intrude into families often on the basis of nothing more than anonymous complaints about standard childrearing practices This arrangement which followed from the questionable assertion of the existence of a crisis of child abuse and neglect became the basis in theory for the universal monitoring of American families that has resulted in the sharp curtailing of parental rights and responsibilities With overreaching by local and state governments into family affairs the current CPS has not only damaged untold numbers of families but also undercut the legitimacy of parental authority through the continuous threat to parents of child removal In Child Abuse Family Rights and the Child Protective System A Critical Analysis from Law Ethics and Catholic Social Teaching Stephen M Krason gathers essays by leading scholars and practitioners to comment through the prism of Catholic social thought on the plight afflicting American families and the role of the child protective system Here readers will find critical essays on the deleterious effect of the 1974 passage of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act assessments of current American policies on child abuse and neglect and the role of the CPS within the context of prevailing international human rights principles and Catholic social teaching a survey of the enforcement of CPS policies from a legal and constitutional perspective research data disputing the CPS principle that all parents are potential abusers and illustrating the greater prevalence of abuse and neglect in broken blended and untraditional families and arguments for poverty and unemployment as the prime culprits in the mistreatment of children Also included are the amicus curiae briefs that the Society of Catholic Social Scientists submitted in two U S Supreme Court cases on parental rights the CPS and state control over the family Child Abuse Family Rights and the Child Protective System should appeal to a variety of professionals as well as scholars from family court attorneys social workers family counselors and clergy to researchers in the fields of social work law family studies American politics sociology human services counseling and psychology and education as well as public officials

A Practical Guide to the Evaluation of Child Physical Abuse and Neglect Angelo P. Giardino, Michelle A. Lyn, Eileen R. Giardino, 2010-06-09 As we near the 50th anniversary of the landmark article by C Henry Kempe and his colleagues entitled The Battered Child Syndrome which ushered in the modern era of professional attention by pediatricians and other child health professionals we have reason for both celebration and concern We can take heart that over the recent decades a great deal of professional attention focused on the problem of child abuse and neglect In every state of the country there are mandatory reporting laws that require nurses physicians and social workers to report suspicions of maltreatment to the appropriate authorities for investigation The act of reporting provides legal immunity to the reporter except when performed in bad faith Progress in understanding the factors that place children at risk for harm from physical abuse and neglect now permits prevention and intervention The peer reviewed literature dealing with child abuse and neglect has proliferated with high quality work being done and reported on the many dimensions related to the epidemiology mechanism treatment and prognosis of child maltreatment Efforts are being directed toward developing an evidence based approach to the prevention of child abuse and neglect These are some of the positives However negatives exist and remain reasons for concern Despite a tremendous amount of attention to the problem of maltreatment there are at least 3 million reports of suspected child abuse and neglect made annually with nearly 1 million cases being substantiated

Community Health Practitioners and Child Sexual Abuse in the Family, 1970s-2010s Ruth Beecher, 2025-05-12 This open access book is an innovative history of community health practitioners responses to the seemingly intractable problem of men and on rare occasions women sexually abusing children within the private family home It is situated within a social history of the development of British community based health professions in the last decades of the twentieth century Drawing on archival research and newly gathered in depth oral history interviews the monograph argues that expectations placed upon community based doctors nurses and mental health staff since the 1980s in relation to predicting and preventing the sexual abuse of children by men they know are incongruous Beneath a surface acquiescence to the need to protect children from such abuse or to intervene early lie cultural social and structural barriers that prevent its fulfilment The book is a first in specifically interrogating the recent history of the role of community health practitioners within the modern child protection workforce and contributes to growing scholarship on the history of emotions in the medical professions
