Tomasson Jannuzi, James T Peach, 2019-07-11 The relationship between the agrarian structure of Bangladesh and its problems of rural development is established in this study based on four years 1975 79 of field research The authors suggest that the concentration of land in the hands of a rural elite is the principal impediment to the participation of weaker sections of the peasantry in economic progress Tracing the failure of local attempts to change Bangladesh's agrarian structure by legislative means they outline a modified program for rural development that is linked to agrarian reform Agrarian reform Drs Jannuzi and Peach argue is the prerequisite for a rural development strategy that provides for both economic growth and improved income distribution thus approaches to rural development in Bangladesh that place reliance on new agricultural technology without first changing the institutions that determine peoples relationships to the land are not viable.
