Social Sciences And Public Policy In The Developing World:

Social Sciences and Public Policy in the Developing World Laurence Davis Stifel, Ralph Kirby Davidson, James S. Shinn, J. Spaapen, V.V. Krishna, 2013-04-17 block possible Soviet expansion by mobilizing European democracies the policy soon extended to some developing countries in Asia and Latin America In response the USSR gradually initiated development programs for newly independent nations in Asia and Africa In this context super power rivalry operated in the South to i expand spheres of influence and control ii guard Southern nations from the influence and incursions launched by the opposed camp iii stimulate indigenous development With few exceptions Southern nations provided little input to the definition and execution of North South dynamics during this period In the case of Africa and to some extent Asia the acquisition of independence was so recent and often sudden that there was little time to reflect on the kind of policies and measures needed to build balanced relations with the former mother country In Latin America the Monroe Doctrine had long insured that the region was a virtual captive of the US Aid for development was contingent on conformity to US political and economic interests The cognitive component of South North dealings strongly reflected the two above mentioned dispositions The relative lack of political experience in the South and the dearth of an organized and sizable intellectual academic community meant that there were few cognitive and human resources for undertaking careful study and analysis of the conditions and needs of development from a Southern perspective influential exceptions existed though such as Raul Prebisch in Latin America or Gandhi in India

International Perspectives on Teacher Education Donald K. Sharpes, 2020-09-10 The preparation of suitably qualified teachers is vital for political social and economic growth in developing countries Some major problems have been caused by the enormous growth in primary enrolment and by the need to train more teachers without reducing standards exacerbated by the fact that in many cases the structure of teacher education is still in its formative stages However these problems can lead to innovative options and solutions Originally published in 1988 this book reports on research and practice in teacher education around the world It examines for example what happens to teacher education at times of great social change or political unrest as in South Africa or Cyprus how programmes in for example Nigeria or China approach minority education and how teachers are prepared for the teaching of indigenous populations such as the Saskatchewan Indians in Canada These examples of international teacher education practice are presented within a specific national regional and cultural context and provide important perspectives on the traditional views of how teachers are and should be prepared and professionally maintained The book will be of interest to all involved in teacher education adult education and curriculum creation dissemination and sharing of knowledge in developing countries A major point addressed by the book is the extent to which the triple helix system of relationships between university industry and government can enhance the effectiveness of universities in developing countries as agents of innovation industrialization and sustainable development State Building and Social Policies in Developing Countries Rashed Al Mahmud Titumir, 2022-07-15 This book moves away from the orthodox neoliberal paradigm to suggest a new framework linking social policy with citizenship and transformation The interjection of nation building public society and public provisioning to the study of education healthcare and employment caters to the needs of citizens equitably By combining and coagulating these three broad arenas of politico economic discussion this book takes a new approach to the analysis of social policymaking in developing countries to indicate the drivers and triggers of transformation It makes comprehensive thorough critical comparisons between the trajectories of developed and developing countries finds out the gaps in transformation and suggests drivers for changes The intentions of social policymaking as proposed in the book are to curb the growing inequalities in the forms of class power and marginalisation The chapters on education focus on provisioning of public goods for skills formation innovation and citizenship education The sections on healthcare centre on universal health care as opposed to universal health coverage by analysing access healthcare seeking behaviour price setting market provisioning etc For the chapters on employment propositions are posited regarding the expansion of productive capacity factor mobility and social security to ensure work for all Besides theorising education healthcare and employment based on public provisioning by the people s state underwritten by a public society the book provides feasible solutions through data sourced from all major international organisations In addition it recognises the unique postcolonial struggles and aspirations of the developing countries and accordingly resorts to defining the normative principles reflecting nuances subtleties and peculiarities This book is a continuation of the author s Fiscal and Monetary Policies in Developing Countries State Citizenship and Transformation Routledge and will draw the attention of scholars and researchers who wish to gain a deeper understanding of and pragmatic solutions to social policies that address the transformational pathways of developing countries accentuated by the COVID 19 pandemic Developing Country Perspectives on Public Service Delivery Anjula Gurtoo, Colin Williams, 2015-05-26 The book examines the status of public service in developing countries in the sectors of health infrastructure labour and marginalized populations rural economy and public administration The last decade has witnessed significant government focus on service delivery in developing nations like South Africa Philippines India and Malaysia At the forefront of this movement has been the public sector reforms significantly driven by two broad factors public sector inefficiencies and liberal economic ideology This move towards efficient public service delivery in developing nations versus developed nations has required a significant shift in institutional thinking and institutional capacity for the governments It is therefore no surprise that while economic liberalization has been relatively easy to implement governance reforms towards public service delivery has been significantly more challenging In this background the chapters of the book with sector themes examine the three basic foundations of public policy courses of action regulatory measures and issues and funding structures and priorities in public service delivery The book is a multi country multi sector perspective since it includes studies from Russian Federation India Ethiopia Pakistan Fiji South Africa Columbia Philippines Macedonia and India This perspective lends itself to the investigation for a comprehensive overall development model

Marketizing Education and Health in Developing Countries Christopher Colclough, 1997 This book draws on evidence from a large number of developing countries to assess the impact of market reforms on the provision of education and health services The contributors show that approaches that seek merely to pass more of their costs to consumers perform less well than is often claimed and that improved cost effectiveness of health and education systems requires far more than changes in the sources and mechanisms of obtaining finance

The Diversity of Emerging Capitalisms in Developing Countries Eric Rougier, François Combarnous, 2017-04-06 This book presents the results of a collective and original empirical investigation of the institutional systems underlying the capitalisms that are coming to the fore in developing nations While varieties of industrialized countries capitalisms are extensively scrutinized those of developing countries capitalisms are far less documented By implementing a unified and original comparative approach based on the institutional complementarity theory the different contributors of the book find evidence for the originality and heterogeneity of the forms of capitalism to be observed in developing countries This text analyses capitalist systems as clusters of sectoral institutions and regulations identifying differences between these clusters in a large sample of emerging and developing countries Rougier and Combarnous bring together contributions answering the following questions What are these clusters of institutions underlying emerging capitalisms Are there common or specific patterns of institutional clustering across countries and what are the main characteristics of the varieties of capitalism they shape What are their main long term determinants Are there specific patterns of economic outcome associated with these clusters Can different forms of institutional complementarity be observed How can we analyse institutional reform from this perspective
