Fourth International Handbook of Globalisation, Education and Policy Research Joseph Zajda, 2024-12-04. This handbook provides a global synthesis of ongoing research in education and policy change during the last decade. It examines discourses of globalisation from the perspectives of the global North and global South. Major theories of globalisation and education policy reforms employed in the handbook are classified into two broad categories: structuralist and post-structuralist. The handbook, while examining the impact of global trends in different societies, cultures, and educational settings, attempts to synthesise different meta-theories of globalisation and their impact on societies and educational systems. It discusses the continued interaction of global, national, and local forces and influences, especially the importance of standards and quality-driven education reforms, the need to overcome inequality of access to quality schools, and aims at providing quality education for all students. In addition, the impact of neo-liberal ideology on education is examined in terms of its impact on ongoing standards-driven education reforms globally. The handbook analyses neo-liberalism in education and its focus on increasing global competitiveness, accountability, efficiency, quality standards, driven policy reforms, and educational stratification. The impact of globalisation on education policy and reforms is a strategically significant issue for us all. The unifying conceptual framework used in the handbook to critique the strategic significance of globalisation is grounded in discourse CDA and critical theory. The work offers the latest findings concerning major issues in education and policy directions such as global social and economic inequality, neo-liberal standard-driven education and policy reforms, performing schools, the performing culture, education for human rights and social justice, new perspectives on education for sustainability, dominant and effective models of values education in schools, and the ubiquitous impact of ICTs on education systems.

Information Systems Theory Yogesh K. Dwivedi, Michael R. Wade, Scott L. Schneberger, 2011-09-21. The overall mission of this book is to provide a comprehensive understanding and coverage of the various theories and models used in IS research. Specifically, it aims to focus on the following key objectives: To describe the various theories and models applicable to studying IS/IT management issues; To outline and describe for each of the various theories and models independent and dependent constructs, reference discipline, originating area, originating author's seminal articles, level of analysis (i.e., firm, individual, industry) and links with other theories; To provide a critical review/meta-analysis of IS/IT management articles that have used a particular theory/model; To discuss how a theory can be used to better understand how information systems can be effectively deployed in today's digital world. This book contributes to our understanding of a number of theories and models. The theoretical contribution of this book is that it analyzes and synthesizes the relevant literature in order to enhance knowledge of IS theories and models from various perspectives. To cater to the information needs of a diverse spectrum of readers, this book is structured into two volumes with each volume further broken down into two sections. The first section of Volume 1 presents detailed descriptions of a set of theories centered around the IS lifecycle including the Success Model, Technology Acceptance Model, User Resistance Theories, and four others. The second section of Volume 1 contains strategic and economic theories including a Resource Based View, Theory of Slack Resources, Portfolio Theory, Discrepancy Theory, Models, and eleven others. The first section of Volume 2 concerns socio-psychological theories. These include Personal Construct Theory, Psychological Ownership, Transactive Memory, Language Action Approach, and nine others. The second section of Volume 2 deals with methodological theories including Critical Realism, Grounded Theory, Narrative Inquiry, Work System Method, and four others. Together, these theories provide a rich tapestry of knowledge around the use of theory in IS research.
