challenges many of the presumptions about the inability of Communism to comprehend racial oppression which dominate literary critical approaches to these novels She draws on the complex formations black political agency presumed and reproduced by American Communism during the Depression      After the Rebellion Sekou M. 1945 America has spent more resources on nuclear technology than any other national project. Although it requires a massive infrastructure that touches society on myriad levels, nuclear technology has typically been discussed in a limited top-down fashion that clusters around powerful men. In Infrastructures of Apocalypse, Jessica Hurley turns this conventional wisdom on its head, offering a new approach that focuses on neglected authors and Black, queer, Indigenous, and Asian American perspectives. Exchanging the usual white male nuclear canon for authors that include James Baldwin, Leslie Marmon Silko, and Ruth Ozeki, Infrastructures of Apocalypse delivers a fresh literary history of post-1945 America that focuses on apocalypse from below. Here Hurley critiques the racialized urban spaces of civil defense and reads nuclear waste as a colonial weapon. Uniting these diverse lines of inquiry is Hurley's belief that apocalyptic thinking is not the opposite of engagement but rather a productive way of imagining radically new forms of engagement. Infrastructures of Apocalypse offers futurelessness as a place from which we can construct a livable world. It fills a blind spot in scholarship on American literature of the nuclear age while also offering provocative, surprising new readings of such well-known works as Atlas Shrugged, Infinite Jest, and Angels in America. Infrastructures of Apocalypse is a revelation for readers interested in nuclear issues, decolonial literature, speculative fiction, and American studies.

The African American Challenge to Just War Theory R. Cumming, 2015-12-04 In this innovative treatment of the ethics of war, Ryan P. Cumming brings classical sources of just war theory into conversation with African American voices. The result is a new direction in just war thought that challenges dominant interpretations of just war theory by looking to the perspectives of those on the underside of history and politics.

God and Human Dignity Rufus Burrow Jr., 1992-01-31 Although countless books have been devoted to the life and work of Martin Luther King Jr., few if any have focused on King's appropriation of and contribution to the intellectual tradition of personalism. Emerging as a philosophical movement in the early 1900s, personalism is a type of philosophical idealism that has a number of affinities with Christianity, such as a focus on a personal God and the sanctity of persons. Burrow points to similarities and dissimilarities between personalism and the social gospel movement with its call to churchgoers to involve themselves in the welfare of both individuals and society. He argues that King's adoption of personalism represented the fusion of his Black Christian faith and his commitment not only to the social gospel of Rauschenbusch but most especially to the social gospelism practiced by his grandfather, father, and Black preacher scholars at Morehouse College. Burrow devotes much-needed attention both to King's conviction that the universe is value-infused and to the implications of this ideology for King's views on human dignity and his concept of the Beloved Community. Burrow also sheds light on King's doctrine of God. He contends that King's view of God has been uncritically and erroneously relegated by Black liberation theologians to the general category of theistic absolutism and he offers corrections to what he believes are misinterpretations of this and other aspects of King's thought. He concludes with an application of King's personalism to present-day social problems, particularly as they pertain to violence in the Black community. This book is a useful and fresh contribution to our understanding of the life and thought of Martin Luther King Jr It will be read with interest by ethicists theologians philosophers and social historians
