Jeffries, 2014-04-04 A Nation Can Rise No Higher Than Its Women African American Muslim Women in the Movement for Black Self Determination 1950 1975 challenges traditional notions and interpretations of African American particularly women who joined the Original Nation of Islam during the Civil Rights Black Power era This book is the first major investigation of the subject that engages a wide scope of women from The Nation and utilizes a wealth of primary documents and personal interviews to reveal the importance of women in this community Jeffries reveals that women were respected in the movement and maintained a very clear and often sought after voice in the advancement of the Original Nation of Islam A Nation Can Rise No Higher Than Its Women replaces the typical portrait of the subservient and irrelevant African American Muslim woman with a far more accurate picture of their integral leadership and substantial contributions to the rise of Islam and black consciousness in the self determination movement in the United States and beyond during the Civil Rights Black Power era The Nation, 1893 The Scattered Nation, 1898 The Constitution and the Nation Christopher Waldrep, Lynne Curry, 2003 In 1937 the Supreme Court revolutionized American constitutionalism sharply restricting the states powers and expanding those of the national government In following years the civil rights movement caused further change challenging American life with its demands for equal rights under the Constitution and protection by the federal government The Vietnam War expanded and then contracted presidential power In 2001 attacks organized by followers of Osama bin Laden on American cities revived presidential power leading to new challenges to America s constitutional heritage This volume assembles the most important documents from American constitutional history from the depths of the Great Depression to the terrorist attacks on New York and Washington D C on September 11 2001 Through these important documents American constitutional power can be seen surging and waning but always responding to the drama of world events Drugging a Nation Samuel Merwin, 1908

Catalunya, One Nation, Two States A. Alland, 2006-12-25 This book deals with the culture of Catalan resistance to assimilation through the maintenance of the Catalan language as an expression of identity This book argues that the Catalans also developed a series of cultural mechanisms to foster identity through intellectual and recreational pursuits as well as through an emphasis on language Essentials of Public Speaking Robert Irving Fulton, Thomas Clarkson Trueblood, 1910
