Speech of Mr. Winthrop, of Massachusetts, on the annexation of Texas, delivered in the House of Representatives of the United States, Jan. 6, 1845 Robert C. Winthrop, 1845 Speech of Mr. Winthrop, of Massachusetts, on the Oregon Question Robert C. Winthrop, 2015-07-12 Excerpt from Speech of Mr Winthrop of Massachusetts on the Oregon Question Delivered in the House of Representatives of the United States Jan 3 1846 House of Representatives of the United States January 3d 1846 The House having under consideration the bill reported by the Committee on Military Affairs to provide for raising two additional regiments of riflemen and for other purposes and the question being upon the motion to commit the bill to the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union and Mr John Quincy Adams and Mr C J Ingersoll and others having addressed the House at length Mr Winthrop obtained the floor and proceeded to say that he understood the Chair to have decided that upon the pending motion to refer to the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union a bill for raising two regiments of riflemen the whole question of Oregon was open to debate The House too had virtually sanctioned this decision by declining to sustain the previous question a few moments since Mr W could not altogether agree in the fitness of such a decision but was unwilling to omit the opportunity which it afforded for expressing some views upon the subject My honorable colleague Mr Adams in his remarks yesterday and the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs Mr C J Ingersoll this morning have alluded to the course pursued by them last year and have told us that they both voted for giving immediate notice to Great Britain of our intention to terminate at the earliest day what has been called the convention of joint occupation Though a much humbler member of the House I may be permitted to allude to the fact that I voted against that proceeding last year and to add that I intend to do so now I may be allowed also to remind the House of a series of resolutions upon this subject which I offered to their consideration some days ago I know not whether those resolutions will ever emerge from the pile of matter under which they now lie buried upon your table If they should however I am no means sure that I shall not propose to lay them aside again without discussion Nothing certainly was further from my purpose in offering them than to involve this House in a stormy debate about peace and war Such debates I am quite sensible are of most injurious influence on the public quiet and prosperity and I have no disposition to render myself responsible for a renewal of them I desired only then and I desire only now to place before the House and before the country before it is too late some plain and precise opinions which are sincerely and strongly entertained by myself and which I believe to be no less strongly entertained by many of those with whom I am politically associated in regard to the present most critical state of our foreign relations I desire to do this on many accounts and to do it without delay An idea seems to have been gaining ground in some quarters and to have been somewhat industriously propagated in all quarters that there is no difference of sentiment in this House in reference to the course which has thus far been pursued or which seems about to be pursued hereafter in regard to this unfortunate Oregon controversy About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com
