hours of studying and testing in order to gain a foothold in the supposed meritocracy of American public education. A world where enrichment centers like Kumon have seen 194 percent growth since 2002 and target children as young as three. Even families and teachers who avoid after school academics are getting swept up. Drawing on over 100 in depth interviews with teachers, tutors, principals, children and parents, Dhingra delves into the why people participate in this phenomenon and examines how schools, families and communities play their part. Moving past Tiger Mom stereotypes, he addresses why Asian American and white families practice what he calls hyper education and whether or not it makes sense. By taking a behind the scenes look at the Scripps National Spelling Bee, other national competitions and learning centers, Dhingra shows why good schools, good grades and good behavior are seen as not enough for high achieving students and their parents and why the education arms race is likely to continue to expand.
