Infants at Risk Richard B. Kearsley, Irving E. Sigel, 2021-09-30

What methodologies within the behavioral sciences have clinical application for the diagnosis and management of high risk and handicapped infants? Originally published in 1979, this volume not only deals with this issue but illustrates the contributions that behavioral science may have offered those called upon to evaluate the cognitive consequences of perinatal high risk factors at the time. The inadequacies of some measures used to assess intellectual competence in retardates are juxtaposed with the sophisticated methodologies that may be employed to document early mental abilities. Also included are assessment procedures that bypass reliance on neuromotor performance, imitation, or language production. The authors draw attention to the discontinuous nature of cognitive development, to the possibility that mental and motor development may proceed independently, and to the plasticity of the developing CNS which may overcome early deficits if underlying competences are recognized and exposed to appropriate stimulation. Here is a volume that does not simply catalog the nature of the child's accomplishments and deficits but emphasizes the need to examine his potential for learning and offers various methodologies that may be of value in documenting the child's continuing cognitive development. This book is a re-issue originally published in 1979. The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re-publication.

Nutrition Support for Infants and Children at Risk Richard J. Cooke, Yvan Vandenplas, Ulrich Wahn, 2007 Adequate nutrition is especially important during infancy and childhood where even short periods of malnutrition have long lasting effects on growth development and health in adult life There are several high risk scenarios for the development of malnutrition which are the focus of the current publication Atopic diseases gastrointestinal disorders and preterm delivery For the pediatric allergist it is important to understand the mechanisms regulating IgE responses to food proteins since they may also be the earliest markers for the atopic march As breastfeeding seems to have only limited effects regarding the atopic march other measures to modulate infantile immune responses have to be taken including the use of hypoallergenic formulae or the addition of probiotics or prebiotics to infant formulae The second part of this book highlights the functional properties of nutrition with regard to diseases of the gastrointestinal tract and the ensuing chronic alterations of gastrointestinal function Topics addressed include the molecular basis of some diseases main causes of and nutritional measures in chronic enteropathy including the role of parenteral and enteral nutrition stressed mucosa and the role of nutrition in cholestatic liver disease Nowadays smaller and more immature infants are surviving but the smaller the infant the greater the accrued deficit as nutritional needs change with advancing maturity and one formulation may not meet all requirements Furthermore there are no sensitive accurate and precise measures of nutritional outcome The net effect of these uncertainties is that all very low birth weight infants are growth retarded at hospital discharge Strategies for improving growth in these high risk infants are at the center of the last part of this publication Maternal Newborn Nursing Care Mr. Rohit Manglik,2024-07-30 Comprehensive coverage of prenatal intrapartum postpartum and neonatal nursing care focusing on patient centered and evidence based practices Baby at Risk Ruth Levy Guyer,2006 A riveting and disturbing investigation of how high tech pregnancies and medical interventions affect the lives of babies born at risk their families and society at large Improving The Life Chances Of Children At Risk David E.
