Size And Growth Of The Nutritionally Improved Foods Market:

Size and Growth of the Nutritionally Improved Foods Market Elizabeth Frazão, Jane E. Allshouse, 1996 This study uses supermarket scanner data for 1989-93 to evaluate the size and growth of the market for nutritionally improved foods relative to their traditional counterparts and to determine whether nutritionally improved foods cost more than their counterparts. Sales of nutritionally improved foods grew faster than sales of regular versions in U.S. supermarkets even though nutritionally improved foods generally cost more. The study covers 37 food categories. Family Economics and Nutrition Review, 1997. Since the 1970s an array of public health interventions and national dietary guidelines has sought to reduce sodium intake. However the U.S. population still consumes more sodium than is recommended, placing individuals at risk for diseases related to elevated blood pressure. Strategies to Reduce Sodium Intake in the United States evaluates and makes recommendations about strategies that could be implemented to reduce dietary sodium intake to levels recommended by the Dietary Guidelines for Americans. The book reviews past and ongoing efforts to reduce the sodium content of the food supply and to motivate consumers to change behavior. Based on past lessons learned the book makes recommendations for future initiatives. It is an excellent resource for federal and state public health officials, the processed food and food service industries, health care professionals, consumer advocacy groups, and academic researchers. Technical Bulletin, 1999. Tim Wallace, William R. Schroder, 2012-12-06 This book's purpose is to shed light on the threats and opportunities arising from the incentives and restrictions of governmental actions which food industry managers discover in their search for profits. The food industry as defined here includes farmers, their input suppliers, processors, and distributors. This text explores how the private sector reacts to the stimulus of public support measures, rules, and regulations which are usually motivated by entirely different ends.
