Find the Information You Need! Cheryl Knott, 2016-02-15 Find the Information You Need is designed for the person who suspects that Google and Facebook aren't always giving them the best results for their specific information needs. Created for anyone who wants to understand how to select better information resources, deploy smarter search strategies, and evaluate results more effectively, Find the Information You Need provides concrete exercises demonstrating successful queries on a variety of topics, clear explanations of search techniques, and when to use them, descriptions of the different types of information resources available, including commercial databases, digital libraries, and open access repositories, and helpful advice about evaluating and organizing search results. No existing book offers what Find the Information You Need does: a plain language text that teaches the layperson, the end user, what information brokers, competitive intelligence professionals, and librarians know about finding authoritative information. A key advantage of this handbook is its arrangement. Students in an information discovery course can work through the book in a linear fashion from beginning to end. Others can dip into the text at any point that serves their needs. If someone is only interested in figuring out the best non-profit for their donations of money and time, they can use the chapter presenting exercises and explanations for exactly that kind of search. If they're intrigued by the exercises, they can use the chapters explaining the more technical side of information organization and access to learn more. Find the Information You Need is organized into two main sections. Section I, Make It Work, helps the become a better searcher right away by supplying practical exercises to try. The six chapters in Section I focus on concrete steps to take for results and give only as much explanation as needed to prevent confusion. The six chapters in Section II, How and Why It Works, provide technical details and explanations of search systems and retrieval methods. Three appendices present carefully selected web-based resources where readers can find information for a broad swath of subjects. Appendix I focuses on commercial databases accessible from state library websites at no charge to residents of the respective states. Appendix II lists freely available encyclopedias, including not only Wikipedia but many others that are more focused and more authoritative. Appendix III provides links to a variety of information resources, including health-related data and guidance from U.S. government agencies, huge digital libraries from major educational institutions, and other troves of knowledge treasures. Find the Information You Need can be used by high school and college students undertaking research assignments. But it treats such assignments as a quest for information that anyone in the real world of business, government, the sciences, journalism, and other fields might undertake. As a result, anyone wanting to go beyond the usual web search engine and the biases built into its algorithms can use the book to learn specific, sophisticated resources and techniques, not only to search but to also actually find useful, authoritative information.

Manual of Online Search Strategies C.J. Armstrong, J.A. Large, 2018-12-20 Published in 1992, like the first, this second edition is not intended as an introductory textbook, command-driven Boolean searching. It is targeted at online searchers who already have some knowledge of command languages and may be proficient searchers on databases in one or two subject areas but when required to venture into new and less familiar territory still need guidance It is also offered to end users who possess the subject expertise but lack of information retrieval know how The Manual is offered as a guide to database selection and a navigational aid through the twists and turns of the retrieval maze at least some of the dead ends and backtracking may thereby be avoided This volume written by experts in their various fields deals with the subject coverage and record structures of specific databases offers comparisons between databases context indexing procedures updating policies etc discusses the choice between online and CD ROM sources and between hosts if online is selected and illustrates strategies with numerous search extracts Database ,1990 Women

Online Steven D. Atkinson, Judith Hudson, 1990 Women Online focuses on the problems of investigating interdisciplinary topics in women s studies working with controlled vocabularies and inconsistent indexing and locating feminist scholarship The authoritative contributors to the book not only analyze these problems in general terms but also suggest practical strategies for making online research more effective and productive The sixteen chapters in this much needed book are organized into three broad categories covering disciplines such as humanities and social sciences format of the material covered such as non bibliographic and cited reference databases and specific topics such as lesbian studies and women of color Chapter authors employ a variety of useful methods to analyze issues of coverage and content They compare the results of controlled vocabulary and free text or full text searching and make use of search examples cited reference and multi file searching and bibliometric techniques including analysis of recall precision overlap relevancy uniqueness and trends in file growth The Database Matrix provides an alphabetical listing of files discussed in the book and serves as a directory for online research in women s studies Women Online will be useful to librarians scholars and students who search databases as well as to producers who design and market them
