"Little Research Value" Ndeshi Namhila, 2017-11-28 Ellen Ndeshi Namhila is intrigued by the question Why can the National Archives of Namibia respond to genealogical enquiries of Whites in a matter of minutes with finding estate records of deceased persons while similar requests from Blacks cannot be served Not satisfied with the sweeping statement that this is the result of colonialism and apartheid she follows the track of so called Native estates through legislation record creation and disposal records management and administrative neglect authorised and unauthorised destruction transfer and appraisal

selective processing and almost final amnesia Eventually she discovers over 11 000 forgotten surviving African estate records but also evidence for the destruction of many others And she demonstrates the potential of these records to interpret the lives of those who otherwise appear in history only as statistics records which were condemned to destruction by colonial archivists stating they had little research value and no functional value This study of memory against forgetting is a call to post colonial archives to re visit their holdings and the systemic colonial bias that continues to haunt them This is the revised version of Ellen Namhila's 2015 doctoral thesis published at the University of Tampere Finland Bibliographies for African Studies, 1970-1986 Yvette Scheven, 1988 A Post-Apartheid Southern Africa? Pierre Beaudet, Nancy Thede, 1993-12-13 The book takes a hard look at internal developments and class formation in the region and explores the complex dynamics underlying the failure of socialist transformation demystifying the highly simplified destabilisation thesis and pointing to some of the problems that forces for change in South Africa itself may have to face in the 1990s The chapters make significant reference to changing present and future relations with South Africa and to the impact of internal changes on the development of neighbouring countries
