The Changing Flora And Fauna Of Britain:

The Changing Wildlife of Great Britain and Ireland David L. Hawksworth, 2003-06-26 Periodic comprehensive overviews of the status of the diverse organisms that make up wildlife are essential to determining trends threats and future prospects Just over 25 years ago leading authorities on different kinds of wildlife came together to prepare an assessment of their status of a wide range of organisms in Great Britain and Ireland in The Changing Flora and Fauna of Britain also edited by Professor David L Hawksworth CBE Now in The Changing Wildlife of Great Britain and Ireland he has gathered together some of the original and also new contributors to review changes since that time and look to the future Contributions range from viruses diatoms fungi lichens mites and nematodes through butterflies dragonflies flies and slugs to flowering plants ferns mammals birds and fish The state of knowledge in different groups is assessed and the effectiveness of statutory and other measures taken to safeguard wildlife considered The picture is far from bleak ameliorating sulphur dioxide levels have benefited sensitive lichens and mosses in a dramatic way water quality improvement has been beneficial there have been few certain extinctions and rediscoveries of species thought to have been lost Biodiversity Action Plans have also benefited targeted species but habitat restoration and management for some is not always good for others But there are worrying trends in declining populations with an increasing number being regarded as threatened or endangered especially in agricultural areas and where woodland management has changed particular threats from introduced species and concern over the effects of climate change Some of the smaller organisms remain poorly known a situation unlikely to change as expertise in many is scant or being lost This stock check and look to the future will be a key source book to conservationists naturalists and professional biologists for many years to come

Choice Outstanding Academic Title 2014 While few detailed surveys of fauna or flora exist in England from the period before the nineteenth century it is possible to combine the evidence of historical sources ranging from game books diaries churchwardens accounts and even folk songs and our wider knowledge of past land use and landscape with contemporary analyses made by modern natural scientists in order to model the situation at various times and places in the more remote past This timely volume encompasses both rural and urban environments from 1650 to the mid twentieth century drawing on a wide variety of social historical and ecological sources It examines the impact of social and economic organisation on the English landscape biodiversity the agricultural revolution landed estates the coming of large scale industry and the growth of towns and suburbs It also develops an original perspective on the complexity and ambiguity of man animal relationships in this post medieval period The Ecology of Urban Habitats Oliver Gilbert, 2012-12-06 This book is about the plants and animals of urban areas not the urban fringe not encapsulated countryside but those parts of towns where man's impact is greatest The powerful anthropogenic influences that operate in cities have until recently rendered them unattractive to ecologists who find the high proportion of exotics and mixtures of planted and spontaneous vegetation bewildering They are also unused to considering fashion taste mowing machines and the behaviour of dog owners as habitat factors I have always maintained however and I hope this book demonstrates that there are as many interrelationships to be uncovered in a flower bed as in a field in a cemetery as on a sand dune and due to the well documented history of urban sites together with the strong effects of management they are frequently easier to interpret than those operating in more natural areas The potential of these communities as rewarding areas for study is revealed in the literature on the pests of stored products urban foxes and birds The journals of local natural history societies have also provided a rich source of material as amateurs have never been averse to following the fortunes of their favourite groups into the heart of our cities It is predictable that among the few professionals to specialize in this discipline have been those enclosed in West Berlin who must be regarded as among the leading exponents of urban ecology

The Biogeography of the British Isles Peter Vincent, 2019-09-18 Originally published in 1990 The Biogeography of the British Isles is devoted to the biogeography of the British Isles and surrounding shelf seas Bringing together a wealth of diverse information it is thoroughly referenced and well illustrated and will be invaluable to students of geography environmental science ecology botany and zoology The book traces the development of British biogeography over the last two centuries examining key topics such as ecosystems habitats and niches in the context of plant and animal distribution The book gives a detailed account of the development of biogeographical mapping and recording systems and describes modern day distributions both in the countryside and in urban areas against the backdrop of human activities

The Earth as Transformed by Human Action B. L. Turner, William C. Clark, Robert W. Kates, John F. Richards, Jessica T. Mathews, William B. Meyer, 1993-01-29 The Earth as Transformed by Human Action is the culmination of a mammoth undertaking involving the examination of the toll our continual strides forward technical and social take on our world The purpose of such a study is to document the changes in the biosphere that have taken place over the last 300 years to contrast global patterns of change to those appearing on a regional level and to explain the major human forces that have driven these changes The first section deals strictly with the major human forces of the past 300 years and the second is a detailed account of the transformations of the global environment wrought by human action The final section examines a range of perspectives and theories that purport to explain human actions with regard to the biosphere

Bibliography of Agriculture, 1976 Freshwater Fishes in Britain Cynthia Davies, Jonathan Shelley, Paul Harding, Ian McLean, Ross Gardiner, Graeme Peirson, 2021-10-25 For most British natural historians there is one vertebrate order that could well be said to be out of sight out of mind This is our freshwater fishes familiar principally only to anglers those concerned with managing rivers and other waterbodies and a few research scientists The results of this project which ran from 1998 2002 are published here in the form of comprehensive 10km square dot distribution maps for the 54 species inhabiting England

Scotland Wales the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man These indicate the vulnerability of several of our native British species Following a wide ranging introductory chapter and further chapters on distribution and the history of the project Chapter 4 comprises the individual species accounts under the headings Description Biology and behaviour Habitat Distribution in Britain World distribution Status Hybrids and related species and a final section of the relationship of each species with Man In addition to a map each species is illustrated by fine lithographs taken from Francis Day s famous 19th century work skilfully supplemented by Michael J Roberts for those species unknown to Day Chapter 5 covers conservation and management of freshwater fishes and is followed by four Appendices relating to 1 Publications 2 and 4 Selected websites relating to environmental protection biodiversity information and fish conservation The book concludes with a Glossary a comprehensive Bibliography and an Index In his Foreword Sir John Burnett Chairman of the National Biodiversity Network Trust commends this books as a unique reliable source of clear and comprehensive information that is pleasing both to the mind and to the eyes and expresses the hope that it will lead to the more effective conservation of this alien race in our midst A joint project of the Environment Agency the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology and the Joint Nature Conservation Committee written by a team of 38 authors and compiled and edited by Cynthia Davies CEH Jonathan Shelley EA Paul Harding Biological Records Centre CEH Ian McLean JNCC Ross Gardiner Fisheries Research Services and Graeme Peirson EA
