Stones of Aran: Pilgrimage Tim Robinson, 2008-08-05 The Aran Islands in Galway Bay off the west coast of Ireland are a unique geological and cultural landscape and for centuries their stark beauty and their inhabitants traditional way of life have attracted pilgrims from abroad The Aran Islands in Galway Bay off the west coast of Ireland are a unique geological and cultural landscape and for centuries their stark beauty and their inhabitants traditional way of life have attracted pilgrims from abroad After a visit with his wife in 1972 Tim Robinson moved to the islands where he started making maps and gathering stories eventually developing the idea for a cosmic history of rainn the largest of the three islands Pilgrimage is the first of two volumes that make up Stones of Aran in which Robinson maps the length and breadth of rainn Here he circles the entire island following a clockwise sunwise path in quest of the good step in which walking itself becomes a form of attention and contemplation Like Annie Dillard's Pilgrim at Tinker Creek and Bruce Chatwin's In Patagonia Stones of Aran is not only a meticulous and mesmerizing study of place but an entrancing and altogether unclassi able work of literature Robinson explores Aran in both its elemental and mythical dimensions taking us deep into the island's folklore wildlife names habitations and natural and human histories Bringing to life the ongoing forever unpredictable encounter between one man and a given landscape Stones of Aran discovers worlds Robinson's voyage continues in Stones of Aran Labyrinth of Aran: Labyrinth Tim Robinson, 2009-09-08 Tim Robinson's Stones of Aran is one of the most striking and original literary undertakings of our time Robinson's ambition is to find out both what it is to know a landscape know it as extensively and intimately as possible and what it takes to make that knowledge the sense of the landscape itself come alive in writing It is a project that draws on the legacies of Thoreau and Joyce to which Robinson brings his own polymathic gifts as cartographer mathematician historian and above all shaper of words In Pilgrimage Robinson walked the entire coast of Airann largest of the Aran islands In Labyrinth he turns in to the island's interior These two books parts of an inseparable whole that can for all that be read quite separately from each other constitute a vast polyphonic composition at once encyclopedic and lyrical scientific and surprisingly personal Exploring the illimitable complexity and bounty contained in the seemingly limited confines of a single island Robinson invites us to look without and within and to see the wonder of the world Aran Tom Robbins, 2016-08-08 Stones of Aran Pilgrimage is as Robert Macfarlane says in his introduction one of the most sustained intensive and imaginative studies of a place that has ever been carried out That place is one of the most mysterious and oldest inhabited landscapes in the world the islands of Aran off the west coast of Ireland Tim Robinson's epic exploration of the desolate storm lashed limestone rocks which have already haunted generations of Irish writers takes the form of a clockwise journey around the coast Every cliff inlet and headland reveals layers of myth and historical memory and Robinson makes beautifully crafted observations about the habits of birds plants and the humans who lived there and endured leaving records in stone on the walls cairns and ancient forts in story and in oral tradition Stones of Aran Tim Robinson, 1990-06

is an excellent resource for students researchers and anyone wanting to know more about Ireland Mapping the Invisible Landscape Kent C. Ryden, 1993 Any landscape has an unseen component a subjective component of experience memory and narrative which people familiar with the place understand to be an integral part of its geography but which outsiders may not suspect the existence of OC ounless they listen and read carefully This invisible landscape is make visible though stories and these stories are the focus of this engrossing book Traveling across the invisible landscape in which we imaginatively dwell Kent RydenOCohimself a most careful listener and readerOCoasks the following questions What categories of meaning do we read into our surroundings What forms of expression serve as the most reliable maps to understanding those meanings Our sense of any place he argues consists of a deeply ingrained experiential knowledge of its physical makeup an awareness of its communal and personal history a sense of our identity as being inextricably bound up with its events and ways of life and an emotional reaction positive or negative to its meanings and memories Ryden demonstrates that both folk and literary narratives about place bear a striking thematic and stylistic resemblance Accordingly Mapping the Invisible Landscape examines both kinds of narratives For his oral materials Ryden provides an in depth analysis of narratives collected in the Coeur d Alene mining district in the Idaho panhandle for his consideration of written works he explores the OC essay of place OCO the personal essay which takes as its subject a particular place and a writer s relationship to that place Drawing on methods and materials from geography folklore and literature Mapping the Invisible Landscape offers a broadly interdisciplinary analysis of the way we situate ourselves imaginatively in the landscape the way we inscribe its surface with stories Written in an extremely engaging style this book will lead its readers to an awareness of the vital role that a sense of place plays in the formation of local cultures to an understanding of the many layered ways in which place interacts with individual lives and to renewed appreciation of the places in their own lives and landscapes Listening to the Wind Tim Robinson, 2019-09-10 A mapmaker's vivid journey through the geography ecology and history of Ireland's Connemara region Here is Connemara experienced at a walker's pace From cartographer Tim Robinson comes the second title in the Seedbank series a breathtakingly intimate exploration of one beloved place s geography ecology and history We begin with the earth right in front of his boots as Robinson unveils swaths of fiontarnach fall leaf decay We peer from the edge of the cliff where Robinson's house stands on rickety stilts We closely examine an overgrown patch of heather a flush of sphagnum moss And so footstep by footstep moment by moment Robinson takes readers deep into this storied Irish landscape from the quibbling contentious terrain of Bogland to the shorelines of Inis N to the towering peaks of Twelve Pins Just as wild and essential as the countryside itself are its colorful characters friends and legends and neighbors alike a skeletal story filled sheep farmer an engineer who builds bridges both physical and metaphorical a playboy prince and cricket champion and an enterprising botanist who meets an unexpected demise Within a landscape lie all other things and Robinson rejoices in the universal magic of becoming one with such a place joining with the sound of the past the language we breathe and our frontage onto the natural world Situated at the intersection of mapmaking and mythmaking Listening to the Wind is at once learned and intimate elegiac and magnificent an exceptionally rich book about one place which is also about the whole world Robert Macfarlane Visitors to Connemara that expanse of stony beauty in the west of Ireland are often struck by its stillness This collection of essays succeeds in the difficult task of staying true to the verities of a place on to which so many fantasies have been projected The Guardian Coastal Works Nicholas Allen, Nick Groom, Jos Smith, 2017-07-04 In all the complex cultural history of the islands of Britain and Ireland the idea of the coast as a significant representative space is critical For many important artists coastal space has figured as a site from which to braid ideas of empire nation region and archipelago They have been drawn to the coast as a zone of geographical uncertainty in which the self definitions of the nation founder they have been drawn to it as a peripheral space of vestigial wildness of island retreats and experimental living as a network of diverse localities richly endowed with distinctive forms of cultural heritage and as a dynamically interconnected ecosystem which is at the same time the historic site of significant developments in fieldwork and natural science This collection situates these cultures of the Atlantic edge in a series of essays that create new contexts for coastal study in literary history and criticism The contributors frame their research in response to emerging conversations in archipelagic criticism the blue humanities and island studies the essays challenging the reader to reconsider ideas of margin periphery and exchange These twelve case studies establish the coast as a crucial location in the imaginative history of Britain Ireland and the north Atlantic edge Coastal Works will appeal to readers of literature and history with an interest in the sea the environment and the archipelago from the 18th century to the present Accessible innovative and provocative Coastal Works establishes the important role that the coast plays in our cultural imaginary and suggests a range of methodologies to represent relationships between land sea and cultural work The Journal of the Royal Historical and Archaeological Association of Ireland Royal Historical and Archaeological Association of Ireland, 1878 The Journal of the Royal Historical and Archaeological Association of Ireland ,1887
