Fuller, 2010-02 Far far away there is a magical and mystical world called Zirium that is full of enchanting animals and creatures For hundreds of years this extraordinary place has been ruled and protected by an old wizard Lord Onofrio who guards the peace and prosperity of the kingdom When Zirium is invaded by the Shadow King's evil army they break through the wizard's protection putting the land and its inhabitants in grave danger. Now the only hope for the old wizard and the magical creatures of Zirium is a prophecy foreseeing the coming of three chosen ones who would lead an army against the Shadow King and defeat his dark forces. Who these chosen ones are, no one seems to know. Three homeless and abandoned orphans, Hope, Stevenson, Bonnie Hayes, and Daniel Watts, have no friends, no family, and no future. Suddenly they find themselves transported into the unknown land of Zirium. In Jeff C. Fuller's The Zirium Tales, the Shadow King and these three children have to make choices that not only affect their future but the future of everything that dwells in Zirium. Will the children make the right choices? Or will the Shadow King prove to be too formidable a foe, emerging victorious and destroying everything good.

The Pleasing Companion, a Collection of Fairy Tales, Calculated to Improve the Heart ... Ornamented with Elegant Cuts PLEASING COMPANION, 1790 Famous Tales of Fact and Fancy: Myths and Legends of the Nations of the World Retold for Boys and Girls Various Authors, Many many centuries ago there lived two brothers, Prometheus or Forethought and Epimetheus or Afterthought. They were the sons of those Titans who had fought against Jupiter and been sent in chains to the great prison house of the lower world, but for some reason had escaped punishment. Prometheus, however, did not care for idle life among the gods on Mount Olympus. Instead, he preferred to spend his time on the earth, helping men to find easier and better ways of living. For the children of earth were not happy as they had been in the golden days when Saturn ruled. Indeed, they were very poor and wretched, and cold without fire, without food, and with no shelter but miserable caves. With fire, they could at least warm their bodies and cook their food. Prometheus thought, and later they could make tools and build houses for themselves and enjoy some of the comforts of the gods. So Prometheus went to Jupiter and asked that he might be permitted to carry fire to the earth. But Jupiter shook his head in wrath. "Fire, indeed," he exclaimed, "if men had fire, they would soon be as strong and wise as we who dwell on Olympus. Never will I give my consent." Prometheus made no reply, but he didn't give up his idea of helping men. Some other way must be found, he thought. Then one day, as he was walking among some reeds, he broke off one and, seeing that its hollow stalk was filled with a dry, soft pith, exclaimed, "At last! In this I can carry fire, and the children of men shall have the great gift, in spite of Jupiter." Immediately taking a long stalk in his hands, he set out for the dwelling of the sun in the far east. He reached there in the early morning, just as Apollo's chariot was about to begin its journey across the sky. Lighting his reed, he hurried back, carefully guarding the precious spark that was hidden in the hollow stalk. Then he showed men how to build fires for themselves, and it was not long before they began to do all the wonderful things of which Prometheus had dreamed. They learned to cook and to domesticate animals and to till the fields and to mine precious metals and melt them into tools and weapons. And they came out of their dark and gloomy caves and built for themselves beautiful houses of wood and stone. And instead of being sad and unhappy, they began to laugh and sing. "Behold, the Age of Gold has come again," they said. The Journal of Hellenic Studies, 1897 The Divine Forest: Tales of Enchantment Pasquale De Marco, Journey into the

The Centaur's Wife Amanda Leduc,2021-02-16 Amanda Leduc s brilliant new novel woven with fairy tales of her own devising and replete with both catastrophe and magic is a vision of what happens when we ignore the natural world and the darker parts of our own natures Heather is sleeping peacefully after the birth of her twin daughters when the sound of the world ending jolts her awake Stumbling outside with her babies and her new husband Brendan she finds that their city has been destroyed by falling meteors and that her little family are among only a few who survived But the mountain that looms over the city is still green somehow it has been spared the destruction that has brought humanity to the brink of extinction Heather is one of the few who know the mountain a place city dwellers have always been forbidden to go Her dad took her up the mountain when she was a child on a misguided quest to heal her legs damaged at birth The tragedy that resulted has shaped her life bringing her both great sorrow and an undying connection to the deep magic of the mountain made real by the beings she and her dad encountered that day Estajfan a centaur born of sorrow and of an ancient impossible love and his two siblings marooned between the magical and the human world Even as those in the city around her led by Tasha a charismatic doctor who fled to the city from the coast with her wife and other refugees struggle to keep everyone alive Heather constantly looks to the mountain drawn by love by fear by the desire for rescue She is torn in two by her awareness of what unleashed the meteor shower and what is coming for the few survivors once the green and living earth makes a final reckoning of the usefulness of human life and finds it wanting At times devastating but ultimately redemptive Amanda Leduc s fable for our uncertain times reminds us that the most important things in life aren t things at all but rather the people we want by our side at the end of the world
