

The background of the book cover is a vibrant red. In the lower half, a black and white illustration depicts several nuclear missiles in various stages of launch. One missile is prominently shown in the foreground, angled upwards, with a yellow cross symbol on its side. Other missiles are visible in the background, some with red and white stripes. At the bottom left, a satellite with two large solar panel arrays is shown in orbit. The Earth's horizon is visible at the very bottom, showing a blue and white curve. The title and author's name are printed in white text against the red background.

The Changing Face Of Nuclear Warfare:

The Changing Face of War Martin van Creveld, 2008-12-18 One of the most influential experts on military history and strategy has now written his magnum opus an original and provocative account of the past hundred years of global conflict The Changing Face of War is the book that reveals the path that led to the impasse in Iraq why powerful standing armies are now helpless against ill equipped insurgents and how the security of sovereign nations may be maintained in the future While paying close attention to the unpredictable human element Martin van Creveld takes us on a journey from the last century's clashes of massive armies to today's short high tech lopsided skirmishes and frustrating quagmires Here is the world as it was in 1900 controlled by a handful of great powers mostly European with the memories of eighteenth century wars still fresh Armies were still led by officers riding on horses messages conveyed by hand drum and bugle As the telegraph telephone and radio revolutionized communications big gun battleships like the British Dreadnought the tank and the airplane altered warfare Van Creveld paints a powerful portrait of World War I in which armies would be counted in the millions casualties such as those in the cataclysmic battle of the Marne would become staggering and deadly new weapons such as poison gas would be introduced Ultimately Germany's plans to outmaneuver her enemies to victory came to naught as the battle lines ossified and the winners proved to be those who could produce the most weapons and provide the most soldiers The Changing Face of War then propels us to the even greater global carnage of World War II Innovations in armored warfare and airpower along with technological breakthroughs from radar to the atom bomb transformed war from simple slaughter to a complex event requiring new expertise all in the service of savagery from Pearl Harbor to Dachau to Hiroshima The further development of nuclear weapons during the Cold War shifts nations from fighting wars to deterring them The number of active troops shrinks and the influence of the military declines as civilian think tanks set policy and volunteer forces decouple the idea of defense from the world of everyday people War today van Creveld tells us is a mix of the ancient and the advanced as state of the art armies fail to defeat small groups of crudely outfitted guerrilla and terrorists a pattern that began with Britain's exit from India and culminating in American misadventures in Vietnam and Iraq examples of what the author calls a long almost unbroken record of failure How to learn from the recent past to reshape the military for this new challenge how to still save in a sense the free world is the ultimate lesson of this big bold and cautionary work The Changing Face of War is sure to become the standard source on this essential subject

The Changing Face of Terrorism Benjamin Cole, 2010-12-03 Chemical Biological Radiological and Nuclear CBRN terrorism and the war on terror are major features of international relations and global concern Terrorist threats and actual violence have become increasingly dangerous and lethal since the 1970s However the attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon on 11 September 2001 heralded a new era in terrorist action and were the culmination of a terror campaign against American targets world wide The Changing Face of Terrorism evaluates the continuing threat and counter measures since 9 11 and into the 21st century It is a sober and measured evaluation of the CBRN threat and argues that continuing terror attacks are inevitable and the war on terror will be a continuing feature in international politics and military action Benjamin Cole shows how effective counter terrorist measures must be measured and based not only on effective police and military intelligence and action but on careful evaluation of the politics motivations scientific and technical abilities of groups no terrorist group has made a nuclear device and religious and personal motivation

The New Face of Terrorism Nadine Gurr, Benjamin Cole, 2004-12-17 Anthrax smallpox sarin blister blood and choking agents the list of potential weapons of mass destruction is enormous and varied It was once thought that technological problems would prevent terrorists developing these weapons whilst moral issues would stop them using them That has now changed The technical and organizational sophistication of the attacks on 11th September 2001 heralds a new era in the age old war against terrorism After these attacks attention focused on the activities and capacities of Islamic extremist groups such as Osama bin Laden s al Qa eda organisation but the reality is that terrorist threats could come from almost any quarter This revised edition is the comprehensive and sobering account of the possibilities technological and political

The Changing Face of Globalization Samir Dasgupta, 2004-12-08 Evaluating the impact of globalization on issues like altruism empowerment of women crime and violence culture area studies economy and production and the sociology of humanity this book makes the ethical and moral aspects of globalization its main concerns The complexities of the globalization process in the developing world are explored the debate between globalization and localization between indigenization and hybridization between equalization and inequalization The contributors also examines the consequences for transitional economies in their interactions with multinational corporations and the rise of the anti globalization movement in the past decade

American Military History Center of Military History,1989 American Military History Maurice Matloff,1973 Perils of Dominance Gareth Porter,2005-06-13

Perils of Dominance is the first completely new interpretation of how and why the United States went to war in Vietnam It provides an authoritative challenge to the prevailing explanation that U S officials adhered blindly to a Cold War doctrine that loss of Vietnam would cause a domino effect leading to communist domination of the area Gareth Porter presents compelling evidence that U S policy decisions on Vietnam from 1954 to mid 1965 were shaped by an overwhelming imbalance of military power favoring the United States over the Soviet Union and China He demonstrates how the slide into war in Vietnam is relevant to understanding why the United States went to war in Iraq and why such wars are likely as long as U S military power is overwhelmingly dominant in the world Challenging conventional wisdom about the origins of the war Porter argues that the main impetus for military intervention in Vietnam came not from presidents Kennedy and Johnson but from high ranking national security officials in their administrations who were heavily influenced by U S dominance over its Cold War foes Porter argues that presidents Eisenhower Kennedy and Johnson were all strongly opposed to sending combat forces to Vietnam but that both Kennedy and Johnson were strongly pressured by their national security advisers to undertake military intervention Porter reveals for the first time that Kennedy attempted to open a diplomatic track for peace negotiations with North Vietnam in 1962 but was frustrated by bureaucratic resistance Significantly revising the historical account of a major turning point Porter describes how Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara deliberately misled Johnson in the Gulf of Tonkin crisis effectively taking the decision to bomb North Vietnam out of the president's hands primary sources including the memoirs of weapons designers and scientists declassified intelligence analyses Soviet Academy of Science documents and Nikita Khrushchev's taped reminiscences He finds that in the United States impetus for innovation comes from the bottom at the initiative of corporate or government researchers and military officials whereas the centralized Soviet system produces innovations from the top in response to foreign developments A revelatory analysis of US military policy Soviet American relations and weaponry development Innovation and the Arms Race bears lessons for the study of great power competition and military innovation today

Innovation and the Arms Race Matthew Evangelista,2023-08-15 Innovation and the Arms Race investigates the causes and mechanisms of the technological arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union Challenging the commonly held notion that Soviet weapons innovation processes simply mirror those of the United States Matthew Evangelista shows that the United States usually leads in introducing new military technology while the Soviets typically react to American initiatives Evangelista bases his study of pivotal nuclear weapons development decisions on a variety of US and USSR
